RETAIL STORES AID DRIVE FOR COUNTY GOAL

August Quota Set At $45,200 After June And July Fall Short

PUBLIC URGED TO BUY

Merchants Hopeful Effort Will Boost Pickaway Figure Upward

Pickaway Heroes Day, scheduled Wednesday in Circleville, will see a concerted effort made by all retail stores of the city to boost sales of War Bonds and War Stamps to help Pickaway county reach its quota of sales for August.

Junior Chamber of Commerce officials said Monday that many stores of the city are planning to have Bond and Stamp booths erected in lobbies and inside their sales rooms to promote sales.

Pickaway county has fallen below its quota for the last two months, Earl A. Smith, Bond and Stamp chairman, reporting July's total sales a little short of $30,000 while the month's assigned sale figure was $45,000. June's total sales brought almost the same percentage, about $33,000 being sold out of a similar quota.

$45,200 For August

August's quota has been designated at $45,200, and retail merchants hope to be able to report Thursday that a large part of this amount has already been sold.

Many other counties in south central Ohio are being called on to contribute much more than Pickaway. Hocking county has been assigned a $54,600 quota; Franklin, $2,956,000; Ross $147,000; Fairfield, $193,800; Fayette, $52,300, and Madison, $60,900.

State Bond and Stamp sale offices point out that many counties are failing to cooperate fully with the campaign, stating that nearly half have failed to respond to requests for information contained in bulletins issued from time to time. As a result, the July quota has been missed in the state by about 2.1 percent.

Sales For State

Total sales for Ohio in July were $53,992,000 of the $55,151,000 quota. Series E bonds totalled $30,859,000, and Series F and G totalled $23,133,000. National sales of Bonds reached $900,900,000, the second highest monthly amount on record. The highest monthly total was achieved last January when the nation, reacting to Pearl Harbor and the declaration of war, rolled up $1,060,546,000 in War Bond sales.

Safe Raid At Theatre Is Failure

Thieves, Believed Amateurs, Get Only 65 Cents For Night Crime At Grand

Attempted robbery of the Grand theatre safe is being investigated by Police Chief W. F. McCrady. Only loot obtained by thieves, believed to be amateurs, was 65 cents taken from a money drawer at the theatre's popcorn stand.

Discovery of the robbery attempt was made at 8 a. m. Monday when Eugene Hampp, theatre janitor, went to the offices to start work. He found that someone had hammered the safe in an apparent attempt to get in. A table cover, glass of flowers and other articles which usually are on top the safe were found on the floor.

The safe's detachable combination was on the floor beside the strong box. Roger Vega, theatre manager, told Chief McCrady that he always removes the combination knob, placing it in a drawer of his desk. He believes that someone who knew where the combination knob was kept made the attempt to break the safe.

Safe Balks Thieves

Unable to work the combination, the thief, or thieves, resorted to use of a hammer. But the effort was futile.

All the theatre's weekend receipts were found untouched.

McCrady took several fingerprints which he intends to check.

All entrances to the theatre were found locked by Hampp, only means of entrance being the coal cellar window.

Vega said he was the last person to leave the theatre, locking the front door at 11:45 p. m. Sunday.

DASCH, BURGER LIKELY TO TURN ON ACCOMPLICES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — George John Dasch and Ernest Peter Burger, confessed co-conspirators of the six Nazi saboteurs who were electrocuted Saturday, were reported ready today to repay President Roosevelt for the mercy shown them by testifying against the 10 accused accomplices in the German sabotage plot.

The fact that Dasch and Burger were still alive also raised the possibility that more serious charges could be filed against the 10 persons now held in Chicago and New York on charges of aiding and sheltering the spies after the eight saboteurs landed on American shores from German submarines in mid-June.

Under criminal law, there must be two living witnesses at trials of persons accused of treason. At present the 10 are accused of conspiracy to commit sabotage and the offense is punishable by a maximum penalty of two years in jail, a $10,000 fine, or both.

While Attorney General Biddle said that he might seek legislation to make the crime of aiding and sheltering saboteurs more serious, it was believed that Dasch and Berger will be called as witnesses against the 10 even though more serious charges are not filed.

MAN, 87, SHOOTS SELF THRICE, BUT REMAINS ALIVE

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Aug. 10—In spite of three unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide with an old revolver, Harry Hill, 87, probably will recover, hospital physicians said today.

Police reported that Hill first shot himself in the right temple. The bullet, 20 years old, penetrated his skull only a fraction of an inch.

Then he shot himself in the chest. A rib deflected this bullet and only a flesh wound was caused.

Hill then fired another shot at his head. That missed altogether. He waited some time before he called his son, Bert, who took him to the hospital.

Broken Glass Litters Roads Hampering Transportation; Autos Attacked

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI, Aug. 10—Pro-Gandhi disturbances reached the capital of British India today when a small crowd penetrated an obstruction at the foot of the hill upon which Viceroy Lord Linlithgow's residence is situated.

Police units turned back the demonstrators.

BOMBAY, Aug. 10—The crack of police rifles echoed through the streets of Bombay again today when new outbreaks of violence flared in India's widespread civil disobedience campaign and law enforcement officers were forced to open fire on a rebellious crowd which refused to disperse.

A new demonstration occurred in Poona, where police fired on a crowd consisting mostly of students which had gathered near Parasurambhu college after baton charges had failed to break up the mob. Two persons were wounded.

Schools Closed

All schools and colleges in Poona were closed by authorities.

The death toll had mounted to 12 prior to the staging of a new incident in the Dedar area where suburban trains were stoned by followers of Mohandas K. Gandhi who surged through the streets bitterly denouncing British rule.

First reports did not indicate whether there were any casualties in the Dedar area.

Today's violence followed a series of disturbances which kept police busy throughout yesterday. British troops patrolling the disturbance areas yesterday saw demonstrators burn the government shop at Kalbadev in addition to other hostile acts.

Eighteen mills in the Bombay region interrupted work.

New Flare-ups

The new flare-ups of violence in widely scattered areas of Japanese-endangered India followed the arrest of Gandhi, his wife and numerous leaders of the Nationalist Congress party who supported a civil disobedience campaign to win immediate independence from British rule.

Rioters in Bombay staged "bottle parties" in which empty soda bottles were hurled at cars containing British or Americans.

200 GIRLS AND BOYS JAILED IN GANG CLEANUP

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10—More than 200 boys and girls, nearly all armed with clubs, knives, revolvers and other weapons, were jailed today as Los Angeles city and county authorities continued their drive to end a youthful reign of terror already marked by one murder, numerous beatings, stabbings and acts of vandalism.

Five hundred police officers took part in the huge drive which began Saturday night in Los Angeles' eastside and in a score of cities in the county.

Approximately 175 boys and girls, mostly Mexican, were booked on such felony charges as suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon, suspicion of robbery, suspicion of carrying a concealed weapon and other charges. Others were arrested for curfew violations.

Police said that all the youths arrested will be questioned regarding gang activities and the recent fatal beating of Jose Diaz, 22, in connection with whose death 23 Mexican youths already are being held.

AIR FORCE REVEALS SABOTEURS' AERIAL "SIGNPOSTS"

Aerial "signposts" created by fifth columnists to direct would-be saboteurs to military objectives are pictured above after United States Army observation planes have discovered them in the northeastern section of the country. Deadly Guide Posts, Designed To Lead Enemy Bombers, Found, Erased

Fifth Columnists Mark Field And Forest—Work Invisible From Ground

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Deadly "guide posts" designed to direct enemy bombers to essential war target areas on the eastern seaboard have been discovered and eradicated, the first air force at Michell field, L. I. revealed today.

Revelation that fifth columnists had marked certain forests and fields with clever "sign posts" invisible from the ground but sticking up like a sore thumb from the air, was made by Colonel Dache M. Reeves, commanding officer of the first ground air support command.

Colonel Reeves, released aerial photographs showing the fifth column guides and added:

"You rest assured that although I can't tell you where or when these pictures were taken, the treacherous work they exposed has been erased."

"The markers, woven ingeniously into natural topographical points of the countryside were invisible from the ground," an army statement accompanying the photographs said. "From the air they (observers) found perfect arrows and pointers — aimed directly at airplane factories and air fields."

One of the cleverest markers, the Army said, was made by a fifth columnist plowing a huge field, leaving a section in the center fallow to form an arrow aiming at a nearby airplane factory.

No arrests of fifth columnists connected with the bomber direction markers has been announced although it was understood FBI men and Army Intelligence officers have been investigating thoroughly.

ONLY 700,000 VOTES EXPECTED IN PRIMARIES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10 — The most languid primary campaign in Ohio's recent political history drags to a close today, and despite the best efforts of the candidates to stir interest, only 700,000 of Ohio's 7,000,000 war-conscious citizens are expected to cast ballots tomorrow in the primary election.

Party leaders were unanimous in their belief that the intense interest in the war killed widespread interest in the electioneering. That, coupled with the lack of outstanding personalities or issues in the ballot, accounts for the estimate of George Neffner, chief statistician in the secretary of state's office, that only 10 percent of the state's citizens would go to the polls.

WAR CHEST DATE SET FOR WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 17

Pickaway county's War Chest campaign, in which funds will be sought to finance several worthy undertakings, will be conducted the week beginning September 17.

The goal has been determined at $49,680.

Date for the drive and the amount of money sought were determined Sunday afternoon when members of the War Chest committee gathered in Farm Bureau offices for a lengthy discussion of plans for the important work.

Frank Fischer, superintendent of schools, who is chairman of the campaign, said Monday that several committee vacancies had been tentatively filled, but that names of members would not be announced until he had had an opportunity to interview persons suggested for the jobs.

The War Chest will be used to finance numerous worthy causes during the war.

COLT OF THREE WEEKS GRANTED SUGAR RATION

LA GRANDE, Ore., Aug. 10—A sugar purchase ration card was issued today by the La Grande rationing board in the name of Firefly Gilstrap Skeen.

Firefly is a colt foaled less than two weeks ago. The card was issued when a veterinarian ordered a milk formula containing sugar to correct Firefly's failure to gain weight.

ANTI SABOTEUR GUNS TURN ON AIDERS OF SPY

CHICAGO, Aug. 10—The government today was expected to train its anti-saboteur guns on Chicago where six persons are charged with aiding Herbert Hans Haupt, one of the six spies executed in Washington.

Among those rounded up after Haupt's arrest are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Max Haupt; his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilhelm Froehling, and friends of the Haupt family, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin.

With the six suspects in jail in default of $50,000 bond each pending action by the federal grand jury, J. Albert Woll, U. S. attorney in Chicago, said the government prosecutors may consider a charge of treason against the group.

Investigation of 25 German aliens rounded up in Chicago Thursday and Friday will get under way Wednesday by the enemy alien hearing board, Woll said.

The Haupts have not been informed of their son's execution.

BOY, 12, HELD AS SLAYER OF SISTER, AGE 3

YREKA, Cal., Aug. 10—Accused by a coroner's jury of clubbing his three year old half-sister and then watching her drown, 12 year old Vincent McNeal was lodged in the Juvenile detention home today awaiting examination by psychiatrists.

The victim was Madeline Orcutt whose body was recovered from the Osalmon river near her parents' home at Somes Bar, about 60 miles west of Yreka.

Coroner Jess Treadway and sheriff deputies declared Vincent admitted he became angry at his sister when she failed to do some small task and hit her with a club while she was wading in a shallow part of the river. The boy, officials said, admitted that he had looked on as the girl drowned and made no effort to rescue her.

Mr. and Mrs. Elman Orcutt, stepfather and mother of Vincent, told authorities that three other sisters of the boy had witnessed the beating.

A coroner's jury summoned by Siskiyou county authorities found that Vincent had clubbed the three year old girl and left her to drown. It was recommended by the jury that Vincent be examined by Psychiatrists before prosecution is launched.

SPECIALISTS TO SEE FRONT LINE ARMY SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—Sen. James J. Davis (R) Pa., disclosed today that men and officers in the new army specialist corps will see virtually front line action.

Davis said he had been in touch with M. Lee Lyles, deputy director general of the corps, and had been told that members of the corps will serve where they are needed, including active theaters of operation, within and without continental United States.

The specialists, Davis said, will be assigned scientifically to those military jobs which parallel their employment in times of peace but not necessarily "swivel chair" work.

Fate Of U.S. Rests With Labor Front

President Says To Win War Unceasing Flood Of Materiel Is Needed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—President Roosevelt and his war leaders were convinced of victory today but warned the nation bluntly that the burden of its achievement now rests on the production front.

In an appeal that was both grim and dramatic, with commanders of the European and Pacific fighting forces speaking from abroad, nine leaders in the war effort called on the American production army to "work, work hard and keep on working" to assure an axis defeat.

The President, in a message read over the air by Elmer Davis, War Information director, conceded "great progress" made in production but said that "in terms of what will be required to defeat our enemies we have only just begun to get into our stride." He emphasized:

"To win this war, an unceasing flood of weapons and materials must pour from the factories, shipyards, and mines of our country."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet who spoke from "somewhere in the Pacific" as his forces continued to battle the Japs in the Solomon islands, declared:

"Victory will be a long and bloody task. It will call for undreamed-of sacrifices and privations. It will call, above everything else, for hard work and muscle."

From London, Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the European theatre, cautioned that the flow of raw materials must be maintained, saying:

"Here in England, the soldiers that are your friends and neighbors wait on those weapons. The allied world waits on those weap-

CIVILIANS WIN ARMY PRAISE FOR SAVING FLYERS

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 10—Army officials today were high in their praise of the heroic action of a small group of civilians who helped save the lives of five members of the seven-man crew of an army bomber which crashed and burned as it was taking off from the Raleigh airport.

One man was killed instantly in the crash, and another died several hours later from burns and other injuries.

Army officials at Pope field, Fort Bragg, listed the survivors, all of whom are recovering, as First Lieut. F. E. Werneken, pilot; Second Lieut. L. M. Magnotta, co-pilot; Second Lieut. E. J. Gideon, a former Michigan football star, navigator, who also was hailed as a hero; Technical Sergeant L. E. Glover, and Sergeant M. L. Clark. Sergeant Ross Ware was killed instantly, and Private John R. Rarat died later in a Raleigh hospital.

The plane struck some trees as it was taking off and crashed in flames near the edge of the airport. A small group of civilians on a golf course nearby rushed to the scene and dragged several members of the crew from the wreckage. Lieut. Gideon was blown free of the wreckage, army officials said, but he quickly re-entered the flaming wreckage and helped a companion to safety.

The plane, from McDill field, Fla., was on a routine navigation training flight.

ELEVEN GERMAN SOLDIERS KILLED, HURT IN FRANCE

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 10—Eleven German soldiers were killed or wounded when a crowd of 500 Frenchmen attacked the St. Malo railway station with stones in an effort to prevent shipment of a group of French workers to Germany for forced labor, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today.

Long Nazi Arm Thrust Closer To Maikop Oil—Russia Admits Withdrawal

LONDON, Aug. 10—The allied air and naval offensive in the southwest Pacific "already has had initial successes," the London Evening Star reported in a special Sydney dispatch today.

The battle of the Solomons, expected to develop into the greatest of the war "will decide the future of the whole Pacific campaign," the dispatch said.

By International News Service

The world's far flung battlefronts were ablaze today, but the United States had its sights largely trained on the conflict raging "down under," where American air, land and sea forces were locked in savage conflict with the Japanese in the Solomon islands.

For in that 600-mile long chain of islands, between the Japanese-held Bismarck archipelago and the Anglo-French new Hebrides, U. S. striking power was having its first real test. That test was a battle to protect the tenuous life line from the American shores to the vast island continent of Australia.

The battle went into its fourth day, and there was little real data on how its course ran.

The Japanese, noisy in claims of a great victory Sunday, were singularly quiet today.

Japs Under Bombs

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said that Japanese bases throughout the southwest Pacific—any place where the enemy might try to launch reinforcements—were under constant bombardment.

But it largely was a naval action, and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz was in command of the naval forces fighting in the Solomons. There were ground troops, too — perhaps U. S. Marines, known to be located now in the southwest Pacific war theatre.

The long Nazi arm thrust closer to the oilfields of Maikop today, in the foothills of the snowy-peaked Caucasus mountains.

The Russians acknowledged they had been forced to withdraw to new positions in the Armavir area, 60 miles northwest of these oil fields, as the Germans overwhelmed them by sheer weight of numbers, both tank and infantry.

Nazis Repulsed

But repeated Nazi attacks in the Don elbow, in the Kletskaya area 75 miles west of Stalingrad, were repulsed by the Soviets.

LIBERATORS DROP BOMBS ON PAIR OF NAZI SHIPS

CAIRO, Aug. 10—United States Consolidated B-24 (Liberator) bombers scored hits on two ships in the axis-held Libyan port of Benghazi following an early joint attack with the Royal Air Force, it was announced today.

The all-American raid was carried out in daylight.

The earlier heavy joint attack was directed against enemy shipping. A direct hit was scored on one vessel in the harbor while several others were damaged by near misses.

BOSTON, Aug. 10 — So, you wonder just how effective cuffless trousers have been as a conservation measure?

Well, the Army's first service command headquarters reported today that elimination of cuffs on soldier's trousers has saved 456,000 yards of wool to date. That's enough for 150,000 complete uniforms.

Deadly Guide Posts, Designed To Lead Enemy Bombers, Found, Erased

Fifth Columnists Mark Field And Forest—Work Invisible From Ground

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—Deadly "guide posts" designed to direct enemy bombers to essential war target areas on the eastern seaboard have been discovered and eradicated, the first air force at Michell field, L. I. revealed today.

Revelation that fifth columnists had marked certain forests and fields with clever "sign posts" invisible from the ground but sticking up like a sore thumb from the air, was made by Colonel Dache M. Reeves, commanding officer of the first ground air support command.

Colonel Reeves, released aerial photographs showing the fifth column guides and added:

"You rest assured that although I can't tell you where or when these pictures were taken, the treacherous work they exposed has been erased."

"The markers, woven ingeniously into natural topographical points of the countryside were invisible from the ground," an army statement accompanying the photographs said. "From the air they (observers) found perfect arrows and pointers — aimed directly at airplane factories and air fields."

One of the cleverest markers, the Army said, was made by a fifth columnist plowing a huge field, leaving a section in the center fallow to form an arrow aiming at a nearby airplane factory.

No arrests of fifth columnists connected with the bomber direction markers has been announced although it was understood FBI men and Army Intelligence officers have been investigating thoroughly.

ONLY 700,000 VOTES EXPECTED IN PRIMARIES

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10 — The most languid primary campaign in Ohio's recent political history drags to a close today, and despite the best efforts of the candidates to stir interest, only 700,000 of Ohio's 7,000,000 war-conscious citizens are expected to cast ballots tomorrow in the primary election.

Party leaders were unanimous in their belief that the intense interest in the war killed widespread interest in the electioneering. That, coupled with the lack of outstanding personalities or issues in the ballot, accounts for the estimate of George Neffner, chief statistician in the secretary of state's office, that only 10 percent of the state's citizens would go to the polls.

WAR CHEST DATE SET FOR WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 17

Pickaway county's War Chest campaign, in which funds will be sought to finance several worthy undertakings, will be conducted the week beginning September 17.

The goal has been determined at $49,680.

Date for the drive and the amount of money sought were determined Sunday afternoon when members of the War Chest committee gathered in Farm Bureau offices for a lengthy discussion of plans for the important work.

Frank Fischer, superintendent of schools, who is chairman of the campaign, said Monday that several committee vacancies had been tentatively filled, but that names of members would not be announced until he had had an opportunity to interview persons suggested for the jobs.

The War Chest will be used to finance numerous worthy causes during the war.

COLT OF THREE WEEKS GRANTED SUGAR RATION

LA GRANDE, Ore., Aug. 10—A sugar purchase ration card was issued today by the La Grande rationing board in the name of Firefly Gilstrap Skeen.

Firefly is a colt foaled less than two weeks ago. The card was issued when a veterinarian ordered a milk formula containing sugar to correct Firefly's failure to gain weight.

ANTI SABOTEUR GUNS TURN ON AIDERS OF SPY

CHICAGO, Aug. 10—The government today was expected to train its anti-saboteur guns on Chicago where six persons are charged with aiding Herbert Hans Haupt, one of the six spies executed in Washington.

Among those rounded up after Haupt's arrest are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Max Haupt; his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilhelm Froehling, and friends of the Haupt family, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richard Wergin.

With the six suspects in jail in default of $50,000 bond each pending action by the federal grand jury, J. Albert Woll, U. S. attorney in Chicago, said the government prosecutors may consider a charge of treason against the group.

Investigation of 25 German aliens rounded up in Chicago Thursday and Friday will get under way Wednesday by the enemy alien hearing board, Woll said.

The Haupts have not been informed of their son's execution.

SPECIALISTS TO SEE FRONT LINE ARMY SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—Sen. James J. Davis (R) Pa., disclosed today that men and officers in the new army specialist corps will see virtually front line action.

Davis said he had been in touch with M. Lee Lyles, deputy director general of the corps, and had been told that members of the corps will serve where they are needed, including active theaters of operation, within and without continental United States.

The specialists, Davis said, will be assigned scientifically to those military jobs which parallel their employment in times of peace but not necessarily "swivel chair" work.

BOY, 12, HELD AS SLAYER OF SISTER, AGE 3

YREKA, Cal., Aug. 10—Accused by a coroner's jury of clubbing his three year old half-sister and then watching her drown, 12 year old Vincent McNeal was lodged in the Juvenile detention home today awaiting examination by psychiatrists.

The victim was Madeline Orcutt whose body was recovered from the Osalmon river near her parents' home at Somes Bar, about 60 miles west of Yreka.

Coroner Jess Treadway and sheriff deputies declared Vincent admitted he became angry at his sister when she failed to do some small task and hit her with a club while she was wading in a shallow part of the river. The boy, officials said, admitted that he had looked on as the girl drowned and made no effort to rescue her.

Mr. and Mrs. Elman Orcutt, stepfather and mother of Vincent, told authorities that three other sisters of the boy had witnessed the beating.

A coroner's jury summoned by Siskiyou county authorities found that Vincent had clubbed the three year old girl and left her to drown. It was recommended by the jury that Vincent be examined by Psychiatrists before prosecution is launched.

President Says To Win War Unceasing Flood Of Materiel Is Needed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—President Roosevelt and his war leaders were convinced of victory today but warned the nation bluntly that the burden of its achievement now rests on the production front.

In an appeal that was both grim and dramatic, with commanders of the European and Pacific fighting forces speaking from abroad, nine leaders in the war effort called on the American production army to "work, work hard and keep on working" to assure an axis defeat.

The President, in a message read over the air by Elmer Davis, War Information director, conceded "great progress" made in production but said that "in terms of what will be required to defeat our enemies we have only just begun to get into our stride." He emphasized:

"To win this war, an unceasing flood of weapons and materials must pour from the factories, shipyards, and mines of our country."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet who spoke from "somewhere in the Pacific" as his forces continued to battle the Japs in the Solomon islands, declared:

"Victory will be a long and bloody task. It will call for undreamed-of sacrifices and privations. It will call, above everything else, for hard work and muscle."

From London, Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of the European theatre, cautioned that the flow of raw materials must be maintained, saying:

"Here in England, the soldiers that are your friends and neighbors wait on those weapons. The allied world waits on those weap-

CIVILIANS WIN ARMY PRAISE FOR SAVING FLYERS

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 10—Army officials today were high in their praise of the heroic action of a small group of civilians who helped save the lives of five members of the seven-man crew of an army bomber which crashed and burned as it was taking off from the Raleigh airport.

One man was killed instantly in the crash, and another died several hours later from burns and other injuries.

Army officials at Pope field, Fort Bragg, listed the survivors, all of whom are recovering, as First Lieut. F. E. Werneken, pilot; Second Lieut. L. M. Magnotta, co-pilot; Second Lieut. E. J. Gideon, a former Michigan football star, navigator, who also was hailed as a hero; Technical Sergeant L. E. Glover, and Sergeant M. L. Clark. Sergeant Ross Ware was killed instantly, and Private John R. Rarat died later in a Raleigh hospital.

The plane struck some trees as it was taking off and crashed in flames near the edge of the airport. A small group of civilians on a golf course nearby rushed to the scene and dragged several members of the crew from the wreckage. Lieut. Gideon was blown free of the wreckage, army officials said, but he quickly re-entered the flaming wreckage and helped a companion to safety.

The plane, from McDill field, Fla., was on a routine navigation training flight.

ELEVEN GERMAN SOLDIERS KILLED, HURT IN FRANCE

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 10—Eleven German soldiers were killed or wounded when a crowd of 500 Frenchmen attacked the St. Malo railway station with stones in an effort to prevent shipment of a group of French workers to Germany for forced labor, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today.

Long Nazi Arm Thrust Closer To Maikop Oil—Russia Admits Withdrawal

LONDON, Aug. 10—The allied air and naval offensive in the southwest Pacific "already has had initial successes," the London Evening Star reported in a special Sydney dispatch today.

The battle of the Solomons, expected to develop into the greatest of the war "will decide the future of the whole Pacific campaign," the dispatch said.

By International News Service

The world's far flung battlefronts were ablaze today, but the United States had its sights largely trained on the conflict raging "down under," where American air, land and sea forces were locked in savage conflict with the Japanese in the Solomon islands.

For in that 600-mile long chain of islands, between the Japanese-held Bismarck archipelago and the Anglo-French new Hebrides, U. S. striking power was having its first real test. That test was a battle to protect the tenuous life line from the American shores to the vast island continent of Australia.

The battle went into its fourth day, and there was little real data on how its course ran.

The Japanese, noisy in claims of a great victory Sunday, were singularly quiet today.

Japs Under Bombs

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said that Japanese bases throughout the southwest Pacific—any place where the enemy might try to launch reinforcements—were under constant bombardment.

But it largely was a naval action, and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz was in command of the naval forces fighting in the Solomons. There were ground troops, too — perhaps U. S. Marines, known to be located now in the southwest Pacific war theatre.

The long Nazi arm thrust closer to the oilfields of Maikop today, in the foothills of the snowy-peaked Caucasus mountains.

The Russians acknowledged they had been forced to withdraw to new positions in the Armavir area, 60 miles northwest of these oil fields, as the Germans overwhelmed them by sheer weight of numbers, both tank and infantry.

Nazis Repulsed

But repeated Nazi attacks in the Don elbow, in the Kletskaya area 75 miles west of Stalingrad, were repulsed by the Soviets.

The Egyptian stalemate continued in the Alamein bottleneck, but United States heavy bombers, cooperating with the RAF, once more have raided Tobruk, it was announced in Cairo. Enemy shipping was hit in this newest attack

LIBERATORS DROP BOMBS ON PAIR OF NAZI SHIPS

CAIRO, Aug. 10—United States Consolidated B-24 (Liberator) bombers scored hits on two ships in the axis-held Libyan port of Benghazi following an early joint attack with the Royal Air Force, it was announced today.

The all-American raid was carried out in daylight.

The earlier heavy joint attack was directed against enemy shipping. A direct hit was scored on one vessel in the harbor while several others were damaged by near misses.

REALLY EFFECTIVE

BOSTON, Aug. 10 — So, you wonder just how effective cuffless trousers have been as a conservation measure?

Well, the Army's first service command headquarters reported today that elimination of cuffs on soldier's trousers has saved 450,000 yards of wool to date. That's enough for 150,000 complete uniforms.

on Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's chief Libyan supply base.

The Royal Air Force attacked the Ruhr valley in Germany again during the night, while Nazi raiders dropped incendiary and explosive bombs on sections of the British coast.

India seethed with disorders again today following bloody street rioting Sunday in which at least a dozen persons were killed and more than 100 injured. Launched on a widespread campaign of civil disobedience by the all India congress committee Saturday, the Indians demonstrated violently in a half dozen cities Sunday when Mohandas K. Gandhi was arrested.

Police were forced to use guns and gas and smoke bombs trying to quell rioters as the Indian campaign for independence leaped outside the prescribed passive resistance counselled by the aged Gandhi.

TWO FRIGHTENED BOYS RESCUED FROM OLD MINE

EAST LIVERPOOL, Aug. 10—Frightened but unhurt, two youths, lost in an abandoned, five-mile-deep clay mine, were found safe today by rescue squads which combed the deep crevices and hidden passageways of the unused workings.

The pair, Robert Clutter, 17, and Donarl Mahon, Jr., 13, both of East Liverpool, became lost at noon Sunday when they were separated from four companions after entering a sectioned portion of the mine which extends more than six miles into the hills.

Earlier, state police expressed fear that the two youths would not be found. The 75-year-old mine, owned by the American Vitrified Products Co., has not been used for 20 years.

Improvement of Route 23 between Circleville's north city limits and the Franklin county line was started Monday by Max Zeller, Columbus contractor.

The work will include surface treatment with bituminous material, the distance to be covered being about 14 miles.

Zeller's project has been held up considerably by difficulty in obtaining materials, but sufficient priorities have been received to get the work under way.

The improvement program will replace a scheduled reconstruction job, planned prior to the start of the war. Complete rebuilding of parts of the Scioto Trail between the county seat and the state capital will be held up for the duration.

Traffic will be maintained on Route 23, the highway department announced.

were held in readiness for what is feared the most—communal riots between Hindus and Moslems. What authorities described as "some trouble" was reported in the Northbrook Gardens of Bombay, junction of the Moslem and Hindu districts. Hindus were reported to have thrown stones at Moslem shops, which is the way these serious riots invariably start.

Students in schools and colleges in Bombay left their classrooms, on strike, and joined the throngs who held up and stoned busses and streetcars.

Ten persons were reported killed in Bombay alone, while at least two others lost their lives in other cities as a half dozen Indian centers became scenes of mass disorder following the early-Sunday arrest of the wizened old leader who called for non-violent, passive resistance in an effort to win freedom for India.

Two policemen were among those killed. More than 100 more were wounded or injured as police fired into crowds and used tear and smoke bombs in an effort to disperse the mobs.

The reckless cyclist was Richard W. McNamara, 28, of 450 East Beck street, Columbus. He was arrested on Route 23 south by Highway Patrolman H. A. LARD COSTLY IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Aug. 10 — Lard has become an expensive commodity in Britain! Two people here bought half a pound of lard without using food-ration coupons. Each was fined $200 and court costs. Each was warned that the next offense would mean a "good big jail sentence."

If money is printed in different shades, as it is suggested, how can a color-blind fellow know he isn't being short changed?

TWO FRIGHTENED BOYS RESCUED FROM OLD MINE

EAST LIVERPOOL, Aug. 10—Frightened but unhurt, two youths, lost in an abandoned, five-mile-deep clay mine, were found safe today by rescue squads which combed the deep crevices and hidden passageways of the unused workings.

The pair, Robert Clutter, 17, and Donarl Mahon, Jr., 13, both of East Liverpool, became lost at noon Sunday when they were separated from four companions after entering a sectioned portion of the mine which extends more than six miles into the hills.

Earlier, state police expressed fear that the two youths would not be found. The 75-year-old mine, owned by the American Vitrified Products Co., has not been used for 20 years.

IMPROVEMENTS GET UNDER WAY ON ROUTE 23

Improvement of Route 23 between Circleville's north city limits and the Franklin county line was started Monday by Max Zeller, Columbus contractor.

The work will include surface treatment with bituminous material, the distance to be covered being about 14 miles.

Zeller's project has been held up considerably by difficulty in obtaining materials, but sufficient priorities have been received to get the work under way.

The improvement program will replace a scheduled reconstruction job, planned prior to the start of the war. Complete rebuilding of parts of the Scioto Trail between the county seat and the state capital will be held up for the duration.

Traffic will be maintained on Route 23, the highway department announced.

were held in readiness for what is feared the most—communal riots between Hindus and Moslems. What authorities described as "some trouble" was reported in the Northbrook Gardens of Bombay, junction of the Moslem and Hindu districts. Hindus were reported to have thrown stones at Moslem shops, which is the way these serious riots invariably start.

Students in schools and colleges in Bombay left their classrooms, on strike, and joined the throngs who held up and stoned busses and streetcars.

Ten persons were reported killed in Bombay alone, while at least two others lost their lives in other cities as a half dozen Indian centers became scenes of mass disorder following the early-Sunday arrest of the wizened old leader who called for non-violent, passive resistance in an effort to win freedom for India.

Two policemen were among those killed. More than 100 more were wounded or injured as police fired into crowds and used tear and smoke bombs in an effort to disperse the mobs.

The fight was reported by police to have been caused by a family dispute.

Toles is scheduled for appearance before Mayor Gordon sometime Monday.

The reckless cyclist was Richard W. McNamara, 28, of 450 East Beck street, Columbus. He was arrested on Route 23 south by Highway Patrolman H. A. DRAFT CHIEFS OFFER LIST OF ESSENTIAL JOBS

Selective Service Act Grants Deferrment Right Only To Local Boards

BROAD GROUPS CITED

Attention Called To Various Activities Regarded As Necessary To Victory

National Selective Service authorities, seeking to guide local draft boards in determining basic requirements for occupational deferment of a registrant, has issued a list of 34 broad essential activities which it regards as necessary to war production or essential to the war effort.

The list has been sent to state headquarters, which in turn will see that each local board is advised of its provisions.

The list was compiled by the War Manpower Commission.

In distributing this list, which includes under broad activity classifications "the products, facilities, and services considered necessary to war production and essential to the war effort," national headquarters stressed that it is to be used only as data for guidance in considering individual registrants for occupational classification and does not alter in any way the ban against group or class deferments in the Selective Training and Service law.

The Selective Service act provides that occupational deferments can be granted only to an individual by his own board. The individual seeking such deferment must prove three things to the satisfaction of his local board: (1) that the particular business, industry, or profession in which he is engaged is necessary to war production or essential to the support of the war effort; (2) that the work he, personally, is doing is essential to its functioning; and (3) that there is no supply from which a replacement can be obtained.

Pointing out that the list of civilian activities compiled by the War Manpower Commission comprises broad groups of industrial activities by general type, National Headquarters instructed that when a local board finds that a registrant's occupation comes under one of the listed groups, it may be considered a civilian activity "necessary to war production or essential to the war effort" if it meets one or more of the following tests:

(a) That the business is fulfilling a contract of the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission, or other government agencies engaged directly in war production;

(b) That the business is performing a government service directly concerned with promoting or facilitating war production;

(c) That the business is performing a service, government or private, directly concerned with providing food, clothing, shelter, health, safety, or other requisites of the civilian daily life in support of the war effort;

(d) That the business is supplying material under subcontracts for contracts included in (a), (b) or (c) above; or

(e) That the business is producing raw materials, manufacturing materials, supplies, or equipment, or performing services necessary for the fulfillment of contracts included in (a), (b), (c) or (d) above.

Having found that the business in which a registrant is engaged comes under some group in the attached list, and having applied the tests and made the determination that it is an essential activity, the board then will give consideration to the occupation of the registrant, within that activity, and if he is found to be a "necessary man" as defined by Selective Service regulations, occupational classification in Classes II-A or II-B or Class III-B may be made by the local board.

The list of essential civilian activities compiled by the War Manpower Commission details products, facilities, and services considered necessary to war production and essential to the support of the war effort under broad activities classifications.

LOCKBOURNE BOY DROWNS IN TWO FEET OF WATER

James E. Ray Jr., 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ray, Lockbourne, was drowned Sunday in Big Walnut creek, west of Lockbourne, when he fell into only two feet of water. The youth was walking along the creek bank when he lost his balance and fell.

Despite the fact that the mishap was witnessed by John Holz and Jay Large, Columbus fishermen, neither could get to him in time to save him. They recovered the body and attempted to revive him by artificial respiration, but their efforts were futile.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by Coroner Edward E. Smith of Columbus. The body was removed to the E. F. Schlegel funeral home, Ashville.

The youth is survived by his parents; a brother, Harry, who is in the U. S. Army stationed overseas, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Scheetz of Lockbourne.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Lockbourne Methodist church with burial in Fernwood cemetery by the Schlegel Funeral home.

The Ray family is widely acquainted in northeastern Pickaway county, Mr. Ray having operated a blacksmith shop in Lockbourne, which is just across the Pickaway county line in Franklin, for many years.

IMPORTANCE OF FAT SALVAGE IS EMPHASIZED

Oils Of Vital Importance To War Effort, Says Ohio Committee

PLEA MADE TO WOMEN

Instruction Given To Save Every Possible Ounce Of Vital Material

Importance of the household fat salvage campaign to the war effort is stressed in a communication from the Ohio general salvage committee which quotes a letter from Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States Public Health services.

"Fats and oils are of vital importance to the war effort. They are important foods, too. With overseas sources of supply reduced through enemy action, domestic supplies must be increased, consumption reduced and waste curtailed.

"We are increasing the supply by raising more fat hogs and producing more vegetable oils from such sources as peanuts, soybeans, and cottonseed. We must reduce consumption by using oil in paints and varnishes, by wasting less soap, by the more intelligent use of fats in cooking.

"The housewives of America can help in two ways; first, by making sure that every ounce of edible fat is used in order to reduce total purchases; second, by saving all surplus fat which they cannot use economically in their own households and returning this fat to the butcher. Drippings, residue, all forms of grease should be placed in a clean container with a lid, and kept in a cool place if possible. When a pound or more has accumulated it can be turned in for salvage. There will be no health hazard, even if it gets stale.

"The important thing to remember is that no fats or oils of any kind are to be thrown away. It would be a serious health hazard if through our own carelessness we were obliged to reduce sharply the amount needed by each person for a normal diet."

LOCAL DRAFTEES TO DEPART ON SEPARATE DATES

Pickaway county's July contingent of draftees, called for induction after furloughs of 14 days, will leave Circleville in four, and possibly five, contingents.

Draft board revealed Monday that the furloughs are counted from the date the men are accepted for service, thus some who went to Fort Hayes two weeks ago will be inducted together because they were accepted there the same day, while others who went to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., for additional physical examinations will be sent 14 days from the date they were accepted.

As the induction list stands now, 62 will be sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison in a group leaving Tuesday; one will go August 14, four will leave August 16 and one August 19.

"We are increasing the supply by raising more fat hogs and producing more vegetable oils from such sources as peanuts, soybeans, and cottonseed. We must reduce consumption by using oil in paints and varnishes, by wasting less soap, by the more intelligent use of fats in cooking.

"The housewives of America can help in two ways; first, by making sure that every ounce of edible fat is used in order to reduce total purchases; second, by saving all surplus fat which they cannot use economically in their own households and returning this fat to the butcher. Drippings, residue, all forms of grease should be placed in a clean container with a lid, and kept in a cool place if possible. When a pound or more has accumulated it can be turned in for salvage. There will be no health hazard, even if it gets stale.

"The important thing to remember is that no fats or oils of any kind are to be thrown away. It would be a serious health hazard if through our own carelessness we were obliged to reduce sharply the amount needed by each person for a normal diet."

LOCAL DRAFTEES TO DEPART ON SEPARATE DATES

Pickaway county's July contingent of draftees, called for induction after furloughs of 14 days, will leave Circleville in four, and possibly five, contingents.

Draft board revealed Monday that the furloughs are counted from the date the men are accepted for service, thus some who went to Fort Hayes two weeks ago will be inducted together because they were accepted there the same day, while others who went to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., for additional physical examinations will be sent 14 days from the date they were accepted.

As the induction list stands now, 62 will be sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison in a group leaving Tuesday; one will go August 14, four will leave August 16 and one August 19.

Government Ready To Buy 600,000 Machines For Military Use

PLANTS NOT PRODUCING

Essential Equipment Must Be Bought From Citizens Throughout Land

CLEVELAND, Aug. 10 — Appeal to the public to hasten the sale to the government of their used typewriters was made today by John C. Virden, regional director of the War Production Board for Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, and Michigan.

The government's campaign to buy from the civilian public 600,000 standard used typewriters for military and essential government and war production use, was launched a week ago.

"There isn't any doubt that the public will produce the typewriters," Mr. Virden said. "The idea we want to get across, however, is that they are needed now, not many weeks or months from now. We are equipping an Army and Navy now. We are expanding industries and governmental administrative agencies to produce and direct that production.

"One can easily see that the lack of typewriters alone might become a serious operating bottleneck, not only in war production, but even in the prosecution of the fighting itself.

"A typewriter is essential standard equipment of every bomber that takes the air. Each new battleship needs 59 typewriters, each aircraft carrier 55, each cruiser 30 and each destroyer seven. They are needed by thousands in the vast administrative and communications systems behind the lines.

"A second thought by us at home on whether we want to let the government have a typewriter, that, while convenient to have, is not absolutely essential to our business, is in a sense, a second thought about how hard and how fast we want to fight to win the war."

Mr. Virden outlined the following facts which prompted the government's emergency campaign for used typewriters:

The stocks of new machines on hand in the country, including those which will be more before production is entirely cut off, total about 250,000.

A recent survey of the Army and Navy, Maritime Commission, lend-lease, and other government agencies indicated a minimum of more than 850,000 typewriters needed for the program under way, even after the Army's basis requirement had been cut 60 and the Navy's 50 percent.

This adds up to a 600,000 typewriter "deficit" in the nation's war machinery.

In the hands of private industry and the general public, typewriter production and sales records reveal that there are now in use approximately 2,000,000 machines, produced since January 1, 1935. It is from this "pool" of used typewriters that the government expects to "recruit" for service, the 600,000 needed.

U.S. SOLDIERS TAUGHT HOW TO DETECT "BOOBY"

Troops Set To Kill Straggling Troopers Pointed Out To American Boys

CARELESSNESS FATAL

Elementary Device Explodes When Touched In Any Manner By Unwary

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — A "booby" is the name given to a trick-bomb contrivance used by the enemy to kill straggling soldiers, lingering after a battle, to find souvenirs, capture machine guns, or scare up a bite to eat on an abandoned farm.

So effective are these boobies that American soldiers entering the field of combat will be trained to detect and deal correctly with them, the War Department has announced.

The booby is not an outgrowth of this war, but has had some new angles added since 1939 that soldiers must be informed of and taught to handle, Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, Commanding General of the Ground Forces said.

Carelessness is the booby's dish. One thoughtless move and the booby and the soldier go skyward. In order that the men recognize this danger, General McNair includes moving picture films and manuals in his training course, as well as specially constructed traps for practical knowledge.

How Trap Works

"The elementary booby trap usually consists of a small charge of explosive either in slabs or in a cartridge," the War Department disclosed, "with an igniter either worked by the push or pull method. A discharge may be caused by stepping on a push type, hidden explosive, or tripping over a cord or wire attached to the pull type trap."

The trap is sometimes connected to doors, windows, furniture and helmets, rifles or parts of uniforms, that the soldiers might fancy. They are hidden on weapons or vehicles that have been abandoned.

The men who lay these traps are trained in the psychology of soldiers for they are connected in the most unusual and unsuspecting places.

A machine gun hidden in a tree goes off when a soldier eagerly reaches for it.

A door, slightly ajar, explodes in two men's faces as they push it open to enter a house.

In window sills, traps are set so that the heavy explosion not only kills the careless soldier who crawls over the ledge to enter the building, but means death and serious injury to others with him.

Barns Very Dangerous

Barns are particularly dangerous. The enemy anticipates that the troops will be quartered in the large structure.

Sometimes a truck, apparently abandoned, appeals to the enemy for the purpose of hiding a trap in the motor, or attaching it to the brake handle.

Any light equipment which might attract a soldier is outfitted with a booby trap.

Hidden traps, often lie waiting in drawers or attached to the spring of a bed that looks good to a tired veteran. A kitchen fork might go off in someone's face.

"Similar to booby traps, and hidden in the same manner are anti-personnel mines. These operate with shrapnel effect from a casing containing hundreds of bullets or other missiles which are blown through the air by the explosion of the mine," the Army added. "They are often camouflaged in woods."

J. WRAY HENRY IN ATTENDANCE AT WAR SCHOOL

J. Wray Henry, North Court street, enrolled Sunday afternoon in a War Department defense training course at Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., as representative of the Circleville Civilian Defense Council. The course is devoted principally to protection of civilians in case of emergency.

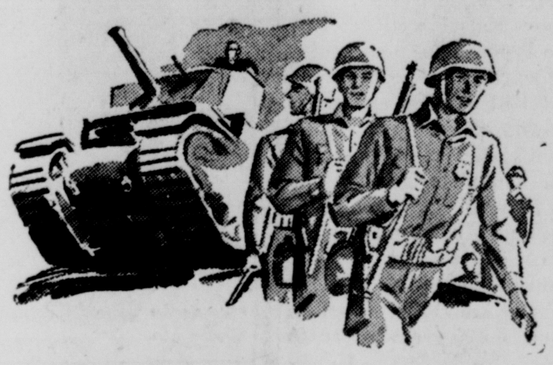

The course, conducted by the U. S. Army, is considered of major importance. It is the only one being staged in the central part of the country.

STATE STUDENTS KNOW STANDING IN WAR SCHEME

Two thirds of the men students attending Ohio State University know where they stand in the war effort, at least for the present.

Nearly half—46 per cent— of all Ohio State men already are enlisted on a deferred basis permitting them to continue their studies as a part of their military preparation. Of these seven per cent are in the Naval Reserve and 39 percent in the Army Reserve.

Another nine per cent of the Ohio State student body have occupational deferment, because their studies are regarded by Selective Service officials as particularly vital to the war effort. Four per cent have deferment for dependency or physical handicap, and seven per cent have not yet reached the draft age.

U.S. SOLDIERS TAUGHT HOW TO DETECT "BOOBY"

Troops Set To Kill Straggling Troopers Pointed Out To American Boys

CARELESSNESS FATAL

Elementary Device Explodes When Touched In Any Manner By Unwary

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — A "booby" is the name given to a trick-bomb contrivance used by the enemy to kill straggling soldiers, lingering after a battle, to find souvenirs, capture machine guns, or scare up a bite to eat on an abandoned farm.

So effective are these boobies that American soldiers entering the field of combat will be trained to detect and deal correctly with them, the War Department has announced.

The booby is not an outgrowth of this war, but has had some new angles added since 1939 that soldiers must be informed of and taught to handle, Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, Commanding General of the Ground Forces said.

Carelessness is the booby's dish. One thoughtless move and the booby and the soldier go skyward. In order that the men recognize this danger, General McNair includes moving picture films and manuals in his training course, as well as specially constructed traps for practical knowledge.

How Trap Works

"The elementary booby trap usually consists of a small charge of explosive either in slabs or in a cartridge," the War Department disclosed, "with an igniter either worked by the push or pull method. A discharge may be caused by stepping on a push type, hidden explosive, or tripping over a cord or wire attached to the pull type trap."

The trap is sometimes connected to doors, windows, furniture and helmets, rifles or parts of uniforms, that the soldiers might fancy. They are hidden on weapons or vehicles that have been abandoned.

The men who lay these traps are trained in the psychology of soldiers for they are connected in the most unusual and unsuspecting places.

A machine gun hidden in a tree goes off when a soldier eagerly reaches for it.

A door, slightly ajar, explodes in two men's faces as they push it open to enter a house.

In window sills, traps are set so that the heavy explosion not only kills the careless soldier who crawls over the ledge to enter the building, but means death and serious injury to others with him.

Barns Very Dangerous

Barns are particularly dangerous. The enemy anticipates that the troops will be quartered in the large structure.

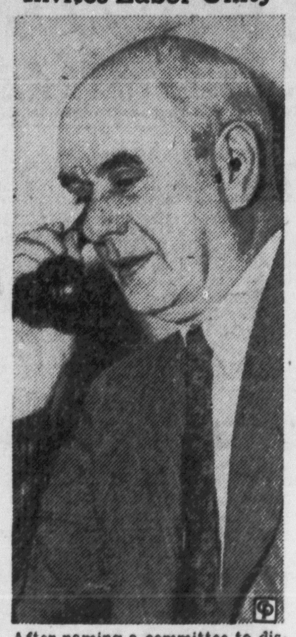

Sometimes a truck, apparently abandoned, appeals to the enemy for the purpose of hiding a trap in the motor, or attaching it to the brake handle.

Any light equipment which might attract a soldier is outfitted with a booby trap.

Hidden traps, often lie waiting in drawers or attached to the spring of a bed that looks good to a tired veteran. A kitchen fork might go off in someone's face.

"Similar to booby traps, and hidden in the same manner are anti-personnel mines. These operate with shrapnel effect from a casing containing hundreds of bullets or other missiles which are blown through the air by the explosion of the mine," the Army added. "They are often camouflaged in woods."

"PORGY AND BESS"

Special musical treat is in store for listeners Wednesday, August 12, at 8 p. m. over CBS, at which time Nelson Eddy and Nadine Conner will sing "Bess You Is My Woman," from George Gershwin's Negro folk opera "Porgy and Bess," currently enjoying a sumptuous revival on Broadway.

Eddy has chosen a balanced group of humorous and serious solos. He will sing the ever-popular "At Dawning," by Charles Wakefield Cadman; "Waltzing Matilda," by Marie Cowan and A. B. Patterson: "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One," from "The Pirates of Penzance," by Gilbert and Sullivan; "Gypsy Love Song," from "The Fortune Teller," by Victor Herbert and "Roadways," by John Densmore.

GINNY SIMS

Ginny Simms, the radio and motion-picture singing star, has been signed to star in a new series of "Johnny Presents" programs to be heard over the coast-to-coast NBC Red network beginning Tuesday night, September 8. Dave Rose with his orchestra and a new vocal group of eight called The Bombardiers will also be featured on the half-hour show. It will emanate from Hollywood and will replace the current Tuesday night "Johnny Presents" broadcasts from New York featuring Ray Block's orchestra and "The Perfect Crime" dramas.

J. WRAY HENRY IN ATTENDANCE AT WAR SCHOOL

J. Wray Henry, North Court street, enrolled Sunday afternoon in a War Department defense training course at Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., as representative of the Circleville Civilian Defense Council. The course is devoted principally to protection of civilians in case of emergency.

The course, conducted by the U. S. Army, is considered of major importance. It is the only one being staged in the central part of the country.

STATE STUDENTS KNOW STANDING IN WAR SCHEME

Two thirds of the men students attending Ohio State University know where they stand in the war effort, at least for the present.

Nearly half—46 per cent— of all Ohio State men already are enlisted on a deferred basis permitting them to continue their studies as a part of their military preparation. Of these seven per cent are in the Naval Reserve and 39 percent in the Army Reserve.

Another nine per cent of the Ohio State student body have occupational deferment, because their studies are regarded by Selective Service officials as particularly vital to the war effort. Four per cent have deferment for dependency or physical handicap, and seven per cent have not yet reached the draft age.

NAZI PURGE

MORE purging is apparently on in Germany. The Berlin radio announces that Adolph Wagner, Nazi boss of Bavaria, is "ill," and has been replaced. Wagner, whose voice over the air could hardly be distinguished from Hitler's, was, though little known outside of Germany, one of the most important of all Nazi officials. His "illness" and replacement are significant as confirming reports of a new party purge.

In other words, all is not harmony in Germany. A great weakness of the Nazi system is the constant intriguing within the ranks against more favored party members. No matter how high up a Nazi official, be he Goebbels or Himmler or Goering himself, plotting is continually going on against him. Lincoln once summed it up, quoting Scripture: "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

The whole passage, from the third chapter of Mark, is interesting in this connection. "He said unto them in parables, 'How can Satan cast out Satan? And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand. And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.'"

The more the Nazis divide and purge, the sooner, perhaps, they may have their end.

WOODEN BRIDGES

WOODEN bridges, which for some time have been going out of existence, are coming back. Pre-fabricated wooden spans of from 20 to 60 feet in length are now under manufacture by the New Hampshire highway department, and are said to give entire satisfaction.

Perhaps, for their protection from weathering, the old covered bridges may come back, too. Even in spite of their posted bills advertising the county fair and Dr. So-and-so's Pills, they form such a picturesque feature of the landscape wherever they exist, that local chambers of commerce and other travel agencies call special attention to them. For years they have been allowed to rot and disappear. It might be a good idea to reverse the trend and let the scenery blossom again with covered bridges.

Dress is getting so slack in this country that women are reported as going to grand opera in slacks.

HENRY KAISER BOOMED

WASHINGTON — Henry Kaiser, builder of Boulder Dam, Bonneville, Grand Coulee, and many wartime shipyards, flitted across the Capital stage for only a few brief days while advocating wholesale construction of cargo planes. But already there is a backstage boom to make him chief of the War Production Board, replacing the harassed Mr. Donald Nelson.

Those who know Kaiser well describe him as having the type of business genius sure to succeed in wartime — great vision, and the guts to fulfill visions, especially when he has all sorts of money to spend.

In an era when money means nothing so long as it will win victories, Kaiser's friends say he is a natural. In private life, judged by routine business standards, he would be a flop.

His partners never quite know what he will do, don't even know it when he pledges their assets, in a great hurry to get something done. Inside reason Kaiser broke with the Todd Shipbuilding Co. was because he pledged its assets without its knowledge. But with Kaiser, time is too valuable to waste in arguing when there's a goal to be quickly achieved.

Exact opposite of Kaiser is Jesse Jones. Each is a great man in his own particular fashion. Jesse was the genius of depression days when a banker had to watch every penny, and cards were played close to the chest.

But today's, a banker's mind, applied to buying quinine and erecting rubber plants under the hurried stress of war, may wreck a nation. Kaiser, on the other hand, might go bankrupt in ordinary times—but he has the dash which is required in wartime.

STEEL IS THE SECRET

Chief secret of Kaiser's success in building ships so fast on the West Coast, was having plenty of steel. But the fact that he got plenty of steel was no accident. If he had relied on the WPB he would have got almost nothing.

So in effect he resorted to "industrial blackmail." He threatened to build a $125,000,000 steel plant of his own in California unless the industry supplied him with enough material. This scared big eastern steel men out of their wits. The last thing they wanted was a Western steel plant to compete with their operations in the East.

So steel began to pour into Kaiser's yards from all over the country. And while other shipyards closed for lack of steel, Kaiser's kept working.

It was this continuous supply of steel which permitted him to apply the assembly line system to building ships.

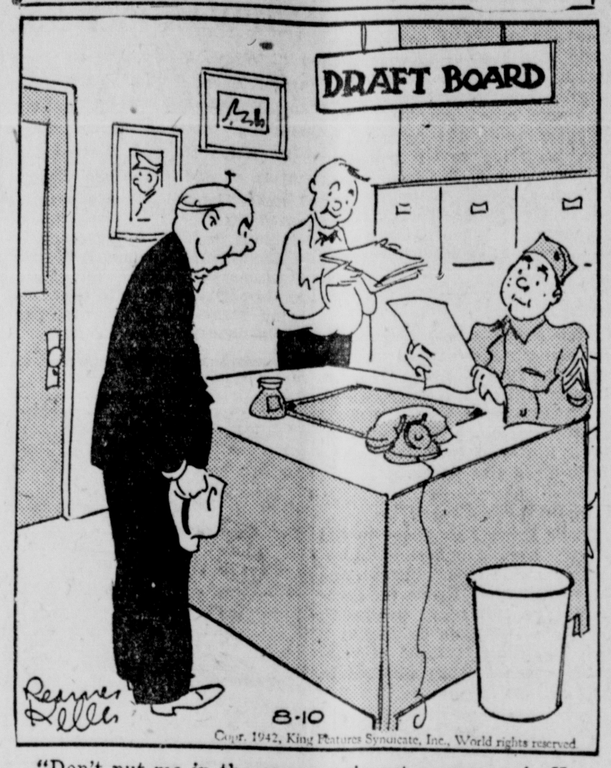

NICE DONALD NELSON

Real fact is that although many war industries are howling for steel, there is

DIET AND HEALTH

Why Some Sunburn While Others Only Tan

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME OF the healthiest men I ever knew went through life the color of chalk, with a deathlike pallor of the face. Many who dropped by the way were ruddy or brown.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Which is another way of saying that a sunburn or a coat of tan is not necessarily a guarantee of blooming physical vigor.

The usual warning to vacationists who want to come home with a good coat of tan is especially needed this year when vacations are likely to be shorter than regular, and you are tempted to compress your suntan accomplishments into ten days or two weeks exposure. The warning is, of course, take it easy and take it slowly.

Making a full exposure the first day to the blazing sun of several hours duration will not result in tan to most people, but in sunburn, which is an entirely different thing and which, contrary to popular belief, does not turn into tan at all.

Of course, there are large individual variations. The dark brunette who is full of pigment and melanin everywhere can mobilize that pigment on the surface of the body with exposure to the sun and never burn at all, but simply begin to tan from the first hour. These skins are the envy of the rest of the populace, but notice they belong to people with dark hair and dark eyes. At the other end of the scale are the extreme blonds and redheads who burn first and tan only after repeated daily exposure. Some of them never tan at all but simply get a mild burn day after day.

In between are most of us who will tan eventually—say the end of two weeks—but who should take it easy, exposing one part of the skin at a time and that only for half an hour at first, getting just a mild enough stimulation to make the pigment cells begin to waken to activity and mobilize on the surface.

It is the ultra-violet rays of the sun which cause the burning, and if these could be partially filtered out of the heat rays, it would probably stimulate the pigment to mobilize. For this there are many ointments to hasten tanning and prevent sunburn, to be applied to the skin before exposure, all of them of some virtue, but none of them infallible.

Filter Out the Rays

Those with pigments in them to filter out the ultra-violet rays are the most logical. But nearly any oil or grease absorbs ultra-violet radiation, and although their action is insufficient to prevent the effects of prolonged exposure to the sun completely, they do materially diminish them.

The best are mineral oil or a combination of mineral oil, sesame and peanut oil. It is possible to incorporate in the oil a chemical parasol, the best being tannic acid or quinine derivatives or methyl salicylate or zinc oxide 10 per cent or sodium salicylate or sodium benzoate 3 per cent.

Sunburn may be severe enough to cause prostration, nausea, fever and evidence of kidney derangement. It should be treated like any burn, with the application of cold cream or ointments containing some local anesthetic such as nupercaine or anesthesin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. D.: Could any physical harm come from taking the drug dilantin for a period of a year or two?

Answer: A great many people are taking dilantin regularly without harm.

M. E. T.—Will you please define the field of physical and occupational therapy?

Answer: Physio-therapy is massage, heat, cold, water treatment, electrical and light treatment. Occupational therapy is the employment of the hands in weaving, carpentry, and is mostly used in the treatment of nervous disorders. Physio-therapy is useful in many conditions — arthritis, muscular rheumatism, headache, skin disease, nervous disorders among others.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband,

MARK, a newspaperman-turned-author, dies in South Wintridge, the small town in which they had taken up residence. Because they and the townspeople had practically nothing in common, there has been only one person sympathetic with her. He is

DR. TONY BRADSHAW, young physician of the town.

YESTERDAY: Tony notices that the Boston Express has stopped at the station to discharge passengers instead of racing through the town, as usual.

CHAPTER THREE

MISS ADDIE Bradshaw sat at the roll-top desk in the surgery, just as she had been sitting for nearly 40 years, and spoke into the telephone with exasperation and experience that the years had merited:

"Millie Sims, he don't need the doctor any mor'n I do! Give the child a good physic, put a mustard plaster on his chest for 20 minutes and keep him in the house until he's over it. You know the doctor's too busy to be running in every time somebody gets a cold." She put the receiver down with an expressive cluck.

"What's this, Addie! Spoiling my business again?" Her nephew stood in the doorway, filling it with his height, topped with tousled head and eyes still sleepy.

"There's some as'd think him homely," Addie thought, "but I think he's got the nicest face I ever saw." Aloud she said, "Fine business the Simses are! They ain't paid a bill since your grandfather stopped sending them to save stamps. . . . You can shave after breakfast, Anthony. I got hot cakes."

He followed her into the dining room and sat down at the head of the table. The morning sun streamed through the shining panes of the window, past pots of plants marching in still little rows on sill and shelf, and fell warmly on his face. It lighted every corner of the room with cheer as it had on every sunny day he could remember.

But this morning, for the first time, its cheeriness was lost upon him and he saw the shabbiness of familiar things; the old rug, thin and faded to nondescript browns, the expert darning of the snowy linen cloth and the patches in the starched lace curtains, the threadbare arms of the rocker by the window, the worn paint of the woodwork and the broken board in the floor that had long since been in need of repair that he could not afford.

Miss Addie came in from the kitchen and put a platter of bacon and eggs in front of him. She wrisked a napkin from a plate of hot cakes and sat down. She poured strong, fragrant coffee into their two cups and gave him one.

"Had my breakfast, but I'll keep you company," she said, dropping two lumps of sugar into her cup.

"Tsk tsk,, Addie. Two lumps?"

She snorted, pleased with the banter and affectionate disrespect with which her brother's boy treated her. "I don't hold with modern dieting," she said primly.

Tony Bradshaw hid a smile back of the morning newspaper. Miss Addie, spare and ageless at 57, need not have told him that she paid no tribute to beauty. Ever since he could remember, her straight, uncompromising figure had been as it was, her hair as tightly drawn into a bun at the back, her raiment of the same unchanging pattern. Only the steel-rimmed glasses were new.

Tony helped himself to generous portions and spread sweet butter and jam on a hot cake. "Any other calls this morning?"

"Higgins, the insurance man. Wants to talk to you about the Harrison case at the mills?"

Tony got a prescription pad out of his pocket and scribbled a note on it. "I'll have to see Kilcran about that this morning."

"You won't see HIM," Addie said curtly. "You'll be put off on someone else, same as you was last time."

"Last time it was personal business," Tony said pleasantly, turning the page of the paper to the sports page. "Like to get in to see that Army game."

"I declare, Anthony, I don't believe you've got any spirit 'tall. The way you work for those mill people at the salary you get, it ain't right. You may be a small-town doctor, but you got to live same as anybody else. As for Kilcran . . ."

Tony said, "He'll see me. Harrison's going to sue for $50,000."

Miss Addie sighed; he hadn't even heard what she said. She said, "Did you get all your calls made last night?"

He put down the paper and pushed away his plate. Then he lit a cigaret and said slowly, "I stopped in to see Mrs. Wister."

Addie Bradshaw said crisply, She sick?"

"No." He paused, then he said weightedly, "She was all alone."

Addie's lips tightened, but she said nothing.

"She's my friend," he said clearly, and added with a less convincing ring, "Mark was my friend."

"Then I'm sure you did right, Anthony. . . . Let me heat up your coffee."

He waited for her to say more, but she poured fresh coffee and cream into the cup without looking at him. "There's a library board meeting at 10 o'clock in church hall. I'll ride down with you."

"Aunt Addie, she's in a tough spot."

She brushed crumbs carefully from the table into her hand, then brushed the cloth with her napkin. "I wouldn't worry about her. She'll get along all right."

"What makes you think so?"

A deliberate note in his voice sent color to her dry cheeks. "That kind always does."

A muscle tightened in Tony's cheek, but he asked calmly, "What do you mean by 'that kind'?"

The spots of color heightened and her lips were thin when she replied, "Anthony, you know that she's different from our people. She don't belong in a place like South Wintridge. She never wanted anything to do with us and I don't suppose she does now."

He smoked deeply and silently for a few moments, wondering if he could tell his aunt about what he had learned last night.

His silence proved too much for her. She said, "When the Wisters came here, Anthony, everybody was nice to them, same as we are to all strangers . . . in spite of their being so different, as anyone could see. Heathenish, you might almost say."

"Sun-worshipers," he murmured.

"That's heathenish, ain't it?" They were both thinking of the same thing, but thinking differently of the Wisters who lived more in their garden than in their house. The town had never ceased to wonder at their sun bathing, the scantiness of their costume, their out-of-doors meals, the casual ease of their life.

Tony looked at his aunt with a smile at the corner of his mouth. "They were quite respectable," he said.

"Respectable? Yes," she begrudged. "I suppose so. But they weren't very friendly, I must say."

He found himself repeating Barbara's words, "She wanted to belong."

His aunt made a queer clucking noise in her throat. "You can't make me, or anybody else believe that, Anthony Bradshaw! Not after the way they acted. If the Wisters wanted to belong they had the same chance as anybody else."

"Did they?" he asked.

"Mercy sakes! You know's well as I do that every lady in the village called on her. Did she ever return a call? She did not! Nice as pie, she was in her own house, but she didn't invite one of 'em to come back. . . . Why, even Mr. Davison called soon as they settled here and invited them to join our church and Mark Wister told him right out they wasn't 'church-going' people."

"Maybe they weren't," he said. In his mind's eye he was seeing the worn Bible, open on the table beside Barbara Wister's bed. It was a narrow, single bed that he remembered.

(To Be Continued)

He lit a cigaret and said, "I stopped in to see Mrs. Wister."

WORLD AT A GLANCE ..... —By— Charles P. Stewart

WARTIME co-ordination is a subject I had occasion to discuss a bit the other day. Those particular remarks, however, related to co-ordination of production of fighting equipment — guns, ammunition, ships and planes. Also they related to production of grub, with which to feed our own and allies' soldiers. Also they related, too, to co-ordination of the United Nations' strategy against the Axis forces.

Harold Groves

Harold M. Groves, special assistant to Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, now calls attention to the fact that we'd better begin co-ordinating taxes as soon as possible.

This isn't an international proposition. It'll be up to our allies to do that kind of co-ordinating each for itself—and heaven help 'em! Our internal taxes, though, are our own especial funeral—and we'd be lucky if we could contrive to attend it, from the taxpayer's standpoint, in the capacity of the coffin's occupant. But we can't, speaking of us collectively.

I imagine nobody doubts that our levies are due to make us all scream with anguish, from next year on down into quite a lot of eternity.

Yet their altitude won't be quite as bad, unless we co-ordinate 'em, as the jumble of 'em. You already know that they're terrific and getting more and more so, but you don't even know what they ARE. You don't know when you've paid 'em and when you haven't.

Too Much Overlapping

Overlapping taxation is the heck of it.

That's the problem that Secretary Morgenthau picked Harold Groves to study. Harold dealt with it recently before a conference of the Municipal Finance Officers' association in Buffalo. He didn't solve anything, but he did give an idea of the intricacies of the puzzle.

Here's the notion:

We've a central government that wants all the money it can get and socks us accordingly.

We also have 48 state governments, doing ditto.

Then we have a lot of little peewee governments, down to cities, big and little, proceeding on the same principle.

There's a rapidly increasing volume of interchanging business among 'em, and each tries to stick it, as an individual unit. Consequently one victim is mulcted maybe half a dozen or more times.

Now, I know my own troubles better than anybody else's, so I speak for myself.

As a Washington correspondent, my commercial headquarters naturally is in the District of Columbia, but I live in the Washington suburb of Alexandria (Va.).

Okay, I get an income, on which I pay a federal income tax in the District. Because my home's in Virginia, though, I likewise pay an income tax to the collector at Richmond. It happens that my small bank account is in a Washington financial institution. The money you've got in a bank is taxed (not as income but as a bank deposit) in the District. It similarly is taxed by the state of Virginia. If I tell the Virginia collector that my dough's outside his jurisdiction, his answer is, "That makes no difference. Any money you've got is taxable by this state—whether in Kamchatka, or anywhere."

Taxed Four Times

So that same cash is taxed four times.

It isn't the size of the total levy that hurts my feelings. The painful detail is that it involves so much bookkeeping.

If I were a multi-millionaire corporation and could maintain an accounting department to keep check, I could stand it. But I'm liable to be yanked up for tax evasion simply because I'm darned if I can keep track of the law.

Treasury Assistant Groves sympathizes.

"Co-ordination," he agrees, is what we've got to have.

Taxation isn't the only issue.

Transportation across state lines is involved. Mere automotive traffic is gummed up.

Wartime co-ordination isn't the only kind we've got on our hands. It'll slop over into the post-war era, too—with the taxes we'll inherit from then on.

Don't I remember when, years ago, we got up to a national expenditure of a billion dollars annually! A lot of folk were shocked. It was in Czar Reed's day, as speaker of the house of representatives. "Pooh-pooh," said he, deprecating the yowl, "this is a billion-dollar country. What of it?"

NAZI PURGE

MORE purging is apparently on in Germany. The Berlin radio announces that Adolph Wagner, Nazi boss of Bavaria, is "ill," and has been replaced. Wagner, whose voice over the air could hardly be distinguished from Hitler's, was, though little known outside of Germany, one of the most important of all Nazi officials. His "illness" and replacement are significant as confirming reports of a new party purge.

In other words, all is not harmony in Germany. A great weakness of the Nazi system is the constant intriguing within the ranks against more favored party members. No matter how high up a Nazi official, be he Goebbels or Himmler or Goering himself, plotting is continually going on against him. Lincoln once summed it up, quoting Scripture: "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

The whole passage, from the third chapter of Mark, is interesting in this connection. "He said unto them in parables, 'How can Satan cast out Satan? And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand. And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.'"

The more the Nazis divide and purge, the sooner, perhaps, they may have their end.

WOODEN BRIDGES

WOODEN bridges, which for some time have been going out of existence, are coming back. Pre-fabricated wooden spans of from 20 to 60 feet in length are now under manufacture by the New Hampshire highway department, and are said to give entire satisfaction.

Perhaps, for their protection from weathering, the old covered bridges may come back, too. Even in spite of their posted bills advertising the county fair and Dr. So-and-so's Pills, they form such a picturesque feature of the landscape wherever they exist, that local chambers of commerce and other travel agencies call special attention to them. For years they have been allowed to rot and disappear. It might be a good idea to reverse the trend and let the scenery blossom again with covered bridges.

HENRY KAISER BOOMED

WASHINGTON — Henry Kaiser, builder of Boulder Dam, Bonneville, Grand Coulee, and many wartime shipyards, flitted across the Capital stage for only a few brief days while advocating wholesale construction of cargo planes. But already there is a backstage boom to make him chief of the War Production Board, replacing the harassed Mr. Donald Nelson.

Those who know Kaiser well describe him as having the type of business genius sure to succeed in wartime — great vision, and the guts to fulfill visions, especially when he has all sorts of money to spend.

In an era when money means nothing so long as it will win victories, Kaiser's friends say he is a natural. In private life, judged by routine business standards, he would be a flop.

His partners never quite know what he will do, don't even know it when he pledges their assets, in a great hurry to get something done. Inside reason Kaiser broke with the Todd Shipbuilding Co. was because he pledged its assets without its knowledge. But with Kaiser, time is too valuable to waste in arguing when there's a goal to be quickly achieved.

Exact opposite of Kaiser is Jesse Jones. Each is a great man in his own particular fashion. Jesse was the genius of depression days when a banker had to watch every penny, and cards were played close to the chest.

But today's, a banker's mind, applied to buying quinine and erecting rubber plants under the hurried stress of war, may wreck a nation. Kaiser, on the other hand, might go bankrupt in ordinary times —but he has the dash which is required in wartime.

STEEL IS THE SECRET

Chief secret of Kaiser's success in building ships so fast on the West Coast, was having plenty of steel. But the fact that he got plenty of steel was no accident. If he had relied on the WPB he would have got almost nothing.

So in effect he resorted to "industrial blackmail." He threatened to build a $125,000,000 steel plant of his own in California unless the industry supplied him with enough material. This scared big eastern steel men out of their wits. The last thing they wanted was a Western steel plant to compete with their operations in the East.

So steel began to pour into Kaiser's yards from all over the country. And while other shipyards closed for lack of steel, Kaiser's kept working.

It was this continuous supply of steel which permitted him to apply the assembly line system to building ships.

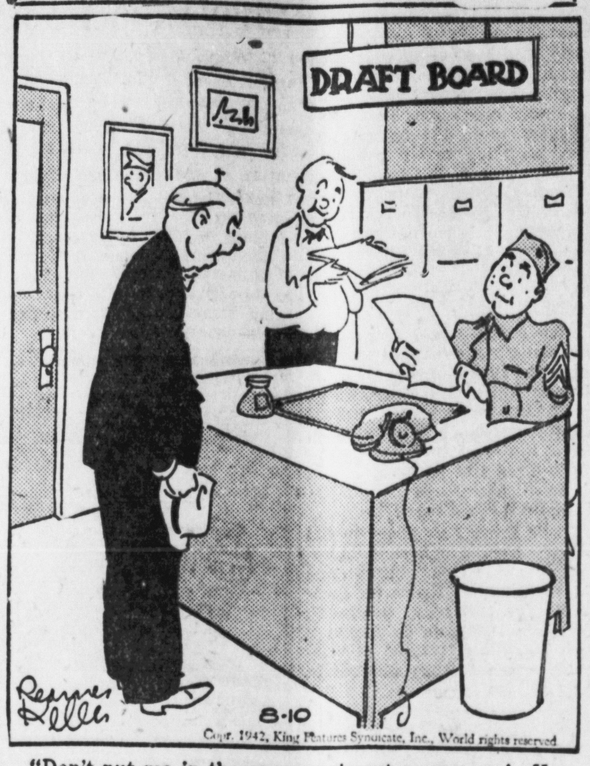

NICE DONALD NELSON

Real fact is that although many war industries are howling for steel, there is

DIET AND HEALTH

Why Some Sunburn While Others Only Tan

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME OF the healthiest men I ever knew went through life the color of chalk, with a deathlike pallor of the face. Many who dropped by the way were ruddy or brown.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Which is another way of saying that a sunburn or a coat of tan is not necessarily a guarantee of blooming physical vigor.

The usual warning to vacationists who want to come home with a good coat of tan is especially needed this year when vacations are likely to be shorter than regular, and you are tempted to compress your suntan accomplishments into ten days or two weeks exposure. The warning is, of course, take it easy and take it slowly.

Making a full exposure the first day to the blazing sun of several hours duration will not result in tan to most people, but in sunburn, which is an entirely different thing and which, contrary to popular belief, does not turn into tan at all.

Of course, there are large individual variations. The dark brunette who is full of pigment and melanin everywhere can mobilize that pigment on the surface of the body with exposure to the sun and never burn at all, but simply begin to tan from the first hour. These skins are the envy of the rest of the populace, but notice they belong to people with dark hair and dark eyes. At the other end of the scale are the extreme blonds and redheads who burn first and tan only after repeated daily exposure. Some of them never tan at all but simply get a mild burn day after day.

In between are most of us who will tan eventually—say the end of two weeks—but who should take it easy, exposing one part of the skin at a time and that only for half an hour at first, getting just a mild enough stimulation to make the pigment cells begin to waken to activity and mobilize on the surface.

It is the ultra-violet rays of the sun which cause the burning, and if these could be partially filtered out of the heat rays, it would probably stimulate the pigment to mobilize. For this there are many ointments to hasten tanning and prevent sunburn, to be applied to the skin before exposure, all of them of some virtue, but none of them infallible.

Filter Out the Rays

Those with pigments in them to filter out the ultra-violet rays are the most logical. But nearly any oil or grease absorbs ultra-violet radiation, and although their action is insufficient to prevent the effects of prolonged exposure to the sun completely, they do materially diminish them.

The best are mineral oil or a combination of mineral oil, sesame and peanut oil. It is possible to incorporate in the oil a chemical parasol, the best being tannic acid or quinine derivatives or methyl salicylate or zinc oxide 10 per cent or sodium salicylate or sodium benzoate 3 per cent.

Sunburn may be severe enough to cause prostration, nausea, fever and evidence of kidney derangement. It should be treated like any burn, with the application of cold cream or ointments containing some local anesthetic such as nupercaine or anesthesin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. D.: Could any physical harm come from taking the drug dilantin for a period of a year or two?

Answer: A great many people are taking dilantin regularly without harm.

M. E. T.—Will you please define the field of physical and occupational therapy?

Answer: Physio-therapy is massage, heat, cold, water treatment, electrical and light treatment. Occupational therapy is the employment of the hands in weaving, carpentry, and is mostly used in the treatment of nervous disorders. Physio-therapy is useful in many conditions — arthritis, muscular rheumatism, headache, skin disease, nervous disorders among others.

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband,

MARK, a newspaperman-turned-author, dies in South Wintridge, the small town in which they had taken up residence. Because they and the townspeople had practically nothing in common, there has been only one person sympathetic with her. He is

DR. TONY BRADSHAW, young physician of the town.

YESTERDAY: Tony notices that the Boston Express has stopped at the station to discharge passengers instead of racing through the town, as usual.

CHAPTER THREE

MISS ADDIE Bradshaw sat at the roll-top desk in the surgery, just as she had been sitting for nearly 40 years, and spoke into the telephone with exasperation and experience that the years had merited:

"Millie Sims, he don't need the doctor any mor'n I do! Give the child a good physic, put a mustard plaster on his chest for 20 minutes and keep him in the house until he's over it. You know the doctor's too busy to be running in every time somebody gets a cold." She put the receiver down with an expressive cluck.

"What's this, Addie! Spoiling my business again?" Her nephew stood in the doorway, filling it with his height, topped with tousled head and eyes still sleepy.

"There's some as'd think him homely," Addie thought, "but I think he's got the nicest face I ever saw." Aloud she said, "Fine business the Simses are! They ain't paid a bill since your grandfather stopped sending them to save stamps. . . . You can shave after breakfast, Anthony. I got hot cakes."

He followed her into the dining room and sat down at the head of the table. The morning sun streamed through the shining panes of the window, past pots of plants marching in still little rows on sill and shelf, and fell warmly on his face. It lighted every corner of the room with cheer as it had on every sunny day he could remember.

But this morning, for the first time, its cheeriness was lost upon him and he saw the shabbiness of familiar things; the old rug, thin and faded to nondescript browns, the expert darning of the snowy linen cloth and the patches in the starched lace curtains, the threadbare arms of the rocker by the window, the worn paint of the woodwork and the broken board in the floor that had long since been in need of repair that he could not afford.

Miss Addie came in from the kitchen and put a platter of bacon and eggs in front of him. She wrisked a napkin from a plate of hot cakes and sat down. She poured strong, fragrant coffee into their two cups and gave him one.

"Had my breakfast, but I'll keep you company," she said, dropping two lumps of sugar into her cup.

"Tsk tsk,, Addie. Two lumps?"

She snorted, pleased with the banter and affectionate disrespect with which her brother's boy treated her. "I don't hold with modern dieting," she said primly.

Tony Bradshaw hid a smile back of the morning newspaper. Miss Addie, spare and ageless at 57, need not have told him that she paid no tribute to beauty. Ever since he could remember, her straight, uncompromising figure had been as it was, her hair as tightly drawn into a bun at the back, her raiment of the same unchanging pattern. Only the steel-rimmed glasses were new.

Tony helped himself to generous portions and spread sweet butter and jam on a hot cake. "Any other calls this morning?"

"Higgins, the insurance man. Wants to talk to you about the

He lit a cigaret and said, "I stopped in to see Mrs. Wister."

Harrison case at the mills?"

Tony got a prescription pad out of his pocket and scribbled a note on it. "I'll have to see Kilcran about that this morning."

"You won't see HIM," Addie said curtly. "You'll be put off on someone else, same as you was last time."

"Last time it was personal business," Tony said pleasantly, turning the page of the paper to the sports page. "Like to get in to see that Army game."

"I declare, Anthony, I don't believe you've got any spirit 'tall. The way you work for those mill people at the salary you get, it ain't right. You may be a small-town doctor, but you got to live same as anybody else. As for Kilcran . . ."

Tony said, "He'll see me. Harrison's going to sue for $50,000."

Miss Addie sighed; he hadn't even heard what she said. She said, "Did you get all your calls made last night?"

He put down the paper and pushed away his plate. Then he lit a cigaret and said slowly, "I stopped in to see Mrs. Wister."

Addie Bradshaw said crisply, She sick?"

"No." He paused, then he said weightedly, "She was all alone."

Addie's lips tightened, but she said nothing.

"She's my friend," he said clearly, and added with a less convincing ring, "Mark was my friend."

"Then I'm sure you did right, Anthony. . . . Let me heat up your coffee."

He waited for her to say more, but she poured fresh coffee and cream into the cup without looking at him. "There's a library board meeting at 10 o'clock in church hall. I'll ride down with you."

"Aunt Addie, she's in a tough spot."

She brushed crumbs carefully from the table into her hand, then brushed the cloth with her napkin. "I wouldn't worry about her. She'll get along all right."

"What makes you think so?"

A deliberate note in his voice sent color to her dry cheeks. "That kind always does."

A muscle tightened in Tony's cheek, but he asked calmly, "What do you mean by 'that kind'?"

The spots of color heightened and her lips were thin when she replied, "Anthony, you know that she's different from our people. She don't belong in a place like South Wintridge. She never wanted anything to do with us and I don't suppose she does now."

He smoked deeply and silently for a few moments, wondering if he could tell his aunt about what he had learned last night.

His silence proved too much for her. She said, "When the Wisters came here, Anthony, everybody was nice to them, same as we are to all strangers . . . in spite of their being so different, as anyone could see. Heathenish, you might almost say."

"Sun-worshipers," he murmured.

"That's heathenish, ain't it?" They were both thinking of the same thing, but thinking differently of the Wisters who lived more in their garden than in their house. The town had never ceased to wonder at their sun bathing, the scantiness of their costume, their out-of-doors meals, the casual ease of their life.

Tony looked at his aunt with a smile at the corner of his mouth. "They were quite respectable," he said.

"Respectable? Yes," she begrudged. "I suppose so. But they weren't very friendly, I must say."

He found himself repeating Barbara's words, "She wanted to belong."

His aunt made a queer clucking noise in her throat. "You can't make me, or anybody else believe that, Anthony Bradshaw! Not after the way they acted. If the Wisters wanted to belong they had the same chance as anybody else."

"Did they?" he asked.

"Mercy sakes! You know's well as I do that every lady in the village called on her. Did she ever return a call? She did not! Nice as pie, she was in her own house, but she didn't invite one of 'em to come back. . . . Why, even Mr. Davison called soon as they settled here and invited them to join our church and Mark Wister told him right out they wasn't 'church-going' people."

"Maybe they weren't," he said. In his mind's eye he was seeing the worn Bible, open on the table beside Barbara Wister's bed. It was a narrow, single bed that he remembered.

WORLD AT A GLANCE ..... —By— Charles P. Stewart

WARTIME co-ordination is a subject I had occasion to discuss a bit the other day. Those particular remarks, however, related to co-ordination of production of fighting equipment — guns, ammunition, ships and planes. Also they related to production of grub, with which to feed our own and allies' soldiers. Also they related, too, to co-ordination of the United Nations' strategy against the Axis forces.

Harold Groves

Harold M. Groves, special assistant to Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, now calls attention to the fact that we'd better begin co-ordinating taxes as soon as possible.

This isn't an international proposition. It'll be up to our allies to do that kind of co-ordinating each for itself—and heaven help 'em! Our internal taxes, though, are our own especial funeral—and we'd be lucky if we could contrive to attend it, from the taxpayer's standpoint, in the capacity of the coffin's occupant. But we can't, speaking of us collectively.

I imagine nobody doubts that our levies are due to make us all scream with anguish, from next year on down into quite a lot of eternity.

Yet their altitude won't be quite as bad, unless we co-ordinate 'em, as the jumble of 'em. You already know that they're terrific and getting more and more so, but you don't even know what they ARE. You don't know when you've paid 'em and when you haven't.

Too Much Overlapping

Overlapping taxation is the heck of it.

That's the problem that Secretary Morgenthau picked Harold Groves to study. Harold dealt with it recently before a conference of the Municipal Finance Officers' association in Buffalo. He didn't solve anything, but he did give an idea of the intricacies of the puzzle.

U. S. ENGINEERS DO GREAT JOB OVER ICELAND

Builders With Troops Are Known As "Jacks Of All Trades"

SCOFF AT IMPOSSIBLE

Duties Range From War Work To Building Hospitals, Refrigeration Plants

WITH THE U. S. ARMY ENGINEERS IN ICELAND, Aug. 10—The engineers have hairy ears—or so the song relates—but that doesn't tell of the colossal job army engineers are doing today in Iceland, a job fit to test American ingenuity and capacity for work.

It is a job that began when the first British troops set foot on this island, a job American Marines took up and handed over to the Army. It was and is the task of building complete army cities and stalwart military installations.

The engineers have had more than their share of this task for they are the army's "Jacks of all trades." They are steamfitters, plumbers, architects and landscape gardeners.

They are builders of roads and bridges, auto repairmen, machinists, welders, carpenters, electricians and a dozen more kinds of technicians and specialists.

Wide Range of Duties

Their duties run from military construction of all sorts to the building of hospitals, laundries and refrigeration plants.

And what is more, like all the troops in Iceland, they must be ready to become fighting men at a moment's notice. They have worked hard and they are ready to fight hard.

Maj. Gen. Bonesteel, paying tribute to one engineering unit on its organization day, recently said:

"I have watched you men as you performed your tasks with admiration not only for the versatility of your accomplishments but also for the loyal and soldierly attitude with which you tackled every job.

These American boys from Brooklyn, Oklahoma and the Carolinas have pitched in during all kinds of weather and against all kinds of obstacles.

Rocky Landscape

Nothing they ever say back in the States equals the landscape of most of Iceland—treeless, rocky and jagged, oozing with mud when it rains and choking with lava dust when it doesn't.

Despite these conditions, they have poured concrete foundations and set up Nissen huts all year round.

In Iceland they have never been able to go to the local sawmill for lumber nor to the local foundry for pipe. Everything they use is brought into the country by a long sea voyage.

And, although they came well equipped, at a crucial time some irreplacable part frequently seems to break. When that happens, the engineers merely replace the irreplacable part by making a new one.

Once they ran out of clutches for a certain type of truck. They proceeded to forge substitutes, not the precision products that Detroit manufacturers, but clutches that operate until others arrive.

Mechanical Miracles

As a matter of course the engineers work mechanical miracles with gasoline cans and baling wire, old oil drums and packing cases. They do not, however, have a corner on ingenuity in Iceland nor have they done all the construction work and motor repair on the island.

Every one from doughboys to quartermasters have shared in the building and maintenance of these army towns and villages. But it's the engineers, because they are engineers, who are called in when the going gets tough.

Whenever possible the engineers have hired Icelandic labor for grading, hauling and similar chores but labor, like anything else, is not too plentiful at this base. As a result, the troops have done a great deal of hard physical work. It keeps them fit but crowds their time for tactical training.

Night Rifle Practice

In order to keep work from interfering with fighting fitness, they have built an electrically lighted, outdoor-indoor rifle range to allow practice at night and in all kinds of weather. The range was "captured" one night by an armed patrol from a neighboring camp—the other unit hadn't been informed of the practice and couldn't figure out what the nocturnal shooting was about.

These same engineers recently put on a review and, although their commander apologized for the fact that they were not parade ground soldiers, they marched smartly and proudly behind their own band.

I've seen the same outfit at play, too, putting on minstrel shows, out on the softball diamond and participating in interorganizational boxing. And any one who has heard a company commander at a prize fight shout, "We wuz robbed," as loud as the nearest buck private has a pretty good idea about the engineers' morale.

It's tops.

FISCHER TO SPEAK

Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, will be guest speaker Tuesday noon at the Greenfield Rotary club's luncheon meeting. Mr. Fischer will relate his experiences and observations at the recent Rotary International convention conducted in Toronto, Canada.

He is president of the Circleville Rotary club.

RIVER CLIMBS FOOT, BUT NOT NEAR FLOOD STAGE

Scioto river climbed a foot overnight to reach a stage of 3.35 feet at the West Main street bridge, but is still far from going out of bank and into corn-filled bottom land.

If flood waters stay out of the river bottoms for the next two weeks, one of the biggest corn crops in recent years will be taken from this land.

Sunday's highest temperature was 85 degrees, a heavy rain during the afternoon dropping the reading to 60 during the night. Total rain during the afternoon was .39 of an inch.

Doyle Manbeavers, Circleville route 3, reported to police Sunday that his automobile tax stamp, pasted on the windshield of his car, had been stolen. The car was parked on Western avenue. Manbeavers said the motor number of the car, 4695, was written in ink on the stamp.

A Big Parade Will Be Staged At 9 O'clock A. M.

"For these are the lasting, truthful things..."

This is an American soldier

He goes to war not with any fanatical theories of race superiority, of any special "place in the sun," nor any desire to rule the world by fire and by sword. He fights for something greater. For decency—for his loved ones—for his Country, not as some warlike symbol, but as the one great refuge in this world where the humble, the meek, and the righteous may live and work in peace.

This is why he must win. For these are lasting, truthful things. They are not temporary drugs for the mind, but steadfast things of the heart and the soul. And when the flame of fanaticism finally flickers and goes out, the fires of American decency and honor will still burn

It is this same sense of decency and honor that has bound us all together. We know we cannot all fight. But there is something we can do—and are doing—to help. We can help provide the guns, the planes, the tanks, and the ships to put might behind the right.

By the tens of millions, Americans are saving for Victory in the War Bond Payroll Savings Plan. Every payday we employees, workers and bosses are putting aside 10% of our pay—a dime from every dollar—and every time these savings amount to $18.75, we get a War Bond. And—because this is the free American way—our money is working double. First it goes in a mighty flow for the instruments of Victory, then—ten years later—it comes back to us, four dollars for every three we've put into War Bonds—$25 for every $18.75.

Now look at the picture again. Then imagine that this soldier were your brother, your son, or your sweetheart.

Would ten percent of your pay, in War Bond savings, be too much to help him win—and live?

5 Reasons Why

1. By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.
2. You prove that you are a patriotic American.
3. You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.
4. You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.
5. You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

U. S. ENGINEERS DO GREAT JOB OVER ICELAND

Builders With Troops Are Known As "Jacks Of All Trades"

SCOFF AT IMPOSSIBLE

Duties Range From War Work To Building Hospitals, Refrigeration Plants

WITH THE U. S. ARMY ENGINEERS IN ICELAND, Aug. 10—The engineers have hairy ears—or so the song relates—but that doesn't tell of the colossal job army engineers are doing today in Iceland, a job fit to test American ingenuity and capacity for work.

It is a job that began when the first British troops set foot on this island, a job American Marines took up and handed over to the Army. It was and is the task of building complete army cities and stalwart military installations.

The engineers have had more than their share of this task for they are the army's "Jacks of all trades." They are steamfitters, plumbers, architects and landscape gardeners.

They are builders of roads and bridges, auto repairmen, machinists, welders, carpenters, electricians and a dozen more kinds of technicians and specialists.

Wide Range of Duties

Their duties run from military construction of all sorts to the building of hospitals, laundries and refrigeration plants.

And what is more, like all the troops in Iceland, they must be ready to become fighting men at a moment's notice. They have worked hard and they are ready to fight hard.

Maj. Gen. Bonesteel, paying tribute to one engineering unit on its organization day, recently said:

"I have watched you men as you performed your tasks with admiration not only for the versatility of your accomplishments but also for the loyal and soldierly attitude with which you tackled every job.

These American boys from Brooklyn, Oklahoma and the Carolinas have pitched in during all kinds of weather and against all kinds of obstacles.

Rocky Landscape

Nothing they ever say back in the States equals the landscape of most of Iceland—treeless, rocky and jagged, oozing with mud when it rains and choking with lava dust when it doesn't.

Despite these conditions, they have poured concrete foundations and set up Nissen huts all year round.

In Iceland they have never been able to go to the local sawmill for lumber nor to the local foundry for pipe. Everything they use is brought into the country by a long sea voyage.

And, although they came well equipped, at a crucial time some irreplacable part frequently seems to break. When that happens, the engineers merely replace the irreplacable part by making a new one.

Once they ran out of clutches for a certain type of truck. They proceeded to forge substitutes, not the precision products that Detroit manufacturers, but clutches that operate until others arrive.

Mechanical Miracles

As a matter of course the engineers work mechanical miracles with gasoline cans and baling wire, old oil drums and packing cases. They do not, however, have a corner on ingenuity in Iceland nor have they done all the construction work and motor repair on the island.

Every one from doughboys to quartermasters have shared in the building and maintenance of these army towns and villages. But it's the engineers, because they are engineers, who are called in when the going gets tough.

Whenever possible the engineers have hired Icelandic labor for grading, hauling and similar chores but labor, like anything else, is not too plentiful at this base. As a result, the troops have done a great deal of hard physical work. It keeps them fit but crowds their time for tactical training.

Night Rifle Practice

In order to keep work from interfering with fighting fitness, they have built an electrically lighted, outdoor-indoor rifle range to allow practice at night and in all kinds of weather. The range was "captured" one night by an armed patrol from a neighboring camp—the other unit hadn't been informed of the practice and couldn't figure out what the nocturnal shooting was about.

These same engineers recently put on a review and, although their commander apologized for the fact that they were not parade ground soldiers, they marched smartly and proudly behind their own band.

I've seen the same outfit at play, too, putting on minstrel shows, out on the softball diamond and participating in interorganizational boxing. And any one who has heard a company commander at a prize fight shout, "We wuz robbed," as loud as the nearest buck private has a pretty good idea about the engineers' morale.

It's tops.

FISCHER TO SPEAK

Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, will be guest speaker Tuesday noon at the Greenfield Rotary club's luncheon meeting. Mr. Fischer will relate his experiences and observations at the recent Rotary International convention conducted in Toronto, Canada.

He is president of the Circleville Rotary club.

RIVER CLIMBS FOOT, BUT NOT NEAR FLOOD STAGE

Scioto river climbed a foot overnight to reach a stage of 3.35 feet at the West Main street bridge, but is still far from going out of bank and into corn-filled bottom land.

If flood waters stay out of the river bottoms for the next two weeks, one of the biggest corn crops in recent years will be taken from this land.

Sunday's highest temperature was 85 degrees, a heavy rain during the afternoon dropping the reading to 60 during the night. Total rain during the afternoon was .39 of an inch.

LITTLE KOREA EXHIBIT A OF JAP OPPRESSION

First Nipponese Colony In Asian Continent Forced To Feed Tokyo

SUBJECT OF TWO WARS

Wool Production And Cotton Growing Introduced In Annexed State

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — As exhibit "A" of what might be in store for Asia under Tokyo's projected "Asia for the Asiatics" program, unwilling little Korea, first Japanese colony on that continent, today finds herself feeding the Nipponese war machine with her stores of cotton, iron, coal and graphite.

The whole country has been completely Japanized under the new "Nippon Order," the National Geographic Society pointed out. Her schools, newspapers, money and postage are run by and for the Emeperor. Japanese police have forbidden Korean assembly, free speech and freedom of the press. In 1939-40, the Emperor spent some $300,000 to stamp out what the semi-official Japanese Year Book termed "thought crime" — a form of mental resistance.

Gave Japanese Culture

Just as relentlessly and systematically the Japanese have suppressed American influence and enterprise in Korea. Americans built the first trolley lines and railroads in the country and developed the gold fields. All have been frozen, and only a few American missionaries remain.

With a civilization that began in 1,000 B.C., Korea gave culture and art to Japan. The Koreans developed a moveable metal type half a century before Gutenberg printed his Bible, and more than 300 years ago Koreans invented car-propelled ironclad ships, and destroyed a Japanese fleet.

Became Hermit Kingdom

Finally, as a reaction to Japanese interference Korean secluded herself and became the Hermit Kingdom, shunning all foreign influence. France and the United States endeavored to draw out the recluse, but only Japan was successful in forcing Korea to open her gates to trade.

To assure mastery over Korea, Japan fought two wars — with China in 1894, and Russia in 1904. Then Nippon began to do things with the little peninsular state; she restored the country's ancient name—Chosen; established a protectorate in 1905 and annexed Korea in 1910.

Japan, materials-starved, has herself introduced wool production and the growing of American cotton in the state. The invader has planted peach, apple, grape and pear trees and always with an eye to transportation of Japanese armies, has criss-crossed the land with broad highways pointing toward Siberia.

Koreans Want Liberty

But the stay-at-home Korean, alway under heavy surveillance, for obvious reasons does not appreciate the generous Japanese farm improvements and a 30-fold industrial expansion. He prefers independence and points to Japan's failure as a colonizing power, for Korea has often been called "easy too take and hard to hold." Korea has been fighting the Nipponese for many years.

In China, a million exiled Koreans have raised an estimated 35,000 men to help the United Nations; 25,000 Korean guerrillas harass the invader in Manchukuo; in Washington, Koreans seek lend-lease aid.

Prominent among Korea's ills is the tenant farmer problem. More than 70 percent of the country's 21 millions are farmers, but absentee landlords export half the principal crop of rice to Japan, leaving the farmer poverty-stricken and forced to eat grass, acorns and millet.

Calls Koreans 'Lazy'

The 12-hour-a-day Japanese accuses the Korean of "laziness." According to Japanese statistics, the Korean works 100 days a year on his farm, and the Nipponese 250. While Japanese farm wives toil in the fields, Korean women spend their time laundering white clothes, the conqueror says.

During the severe Winters, the Korean family shut themselves in their one-story, plaster-walled homes, and employ what is called the most comfortable and economical heating system known — hot air and smoke from a stove outside the wall are drawn through flues beneath the stone floor to a chimney in the opposite wall, and the floor itself makes a warm bed on a cold night.

Korea is Florida-shaped, pointing dagger-like to Japan 125 miles southeast across the choppy Sea to Japan. To the west is the Yellow Sea, and to the north are Manchukuo and Russia's Maritime Province, a part of Siberia.

With a population of about 400,000, Seoul is the largest city and principal seaport of Korea.

INDUSTRY CALLS ON 150 GIRLS TO FILL WAR GAPS

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 10—Already using many feminine workers in its war production, General Electric is hiring 150 young college women to do work formerly done by male engineers, M. M. Boring, who employs the company's technical help, recently disclosed.

The first 22 of the group are now at work and, as an experiment, most are being given the company's famous "test" engineering course.. Others will report each week until the quota is obtained.

Mr. Boring explained, "The year 1943 will produce 12,000 college graduate engineers, but only 4,000 of these will be available for private industry. In fact, the armed services will draw 250,000 engineers from other sources, so the need for replacements can be readily seen.

"While we do not expect these girls to become full-fledged engineers, no one can predict how important a part their work will play in war or post-war time."

The applicant selected for the course must have majored in either mathematics or physics during her college course, and, whichever was her major subject, she must also have had training in the other. Their mathematical training must include courses through calculus. In addition to their "testing" work, this Fall will see them taking classroom courses in the fundamentals of engineering and company organization.

2,500 GATHER FOR PICNIC OF CYCLE RIDERS

More than 2,500 persons gathered at Gold Cliff park Sunday to participate in events conducted during the annual Central Ohio Gypsy Tour, planned by motorcycle clubs of Columbus and other cities.

The day was marked by performance by about 350 cyclists, competition being arranged at the park for various awards. The day's program was arranged by John (Slim) Clevenger and a committee working with him.

Cycle clubs participating in the event included the Columbus Golden Arrows, Buckeye and Ohioans and the Lancaster Forest Rose club.

Not a single serious accident happened during the day.

Cyclists started going through Circleville a few minutes before 10 a. m., all organization members meeting at Broad and High streets, Columbus, an hour earlier. Following the main body of cycles, others continued to straggle into the park grounds until after noon.

Members of the clubs, including men and women, took part in the various cycle contests and also enjoyed swimming, roller skating, a ball game, sack races, foot race, greased pole climb and numerous other forms of entertainment.

Members of the state highway patrol and the sheriff's office helped control traffic during the day, the result being that no accidents of damaging nature happened.

Afghanistan has been called "the land of rocks and stones and sanguinary feuds." Its people are nearly all Mohammedans.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

LEAD MERRY GO ROUND .... probably enough to go around inside the country. The problem is distribution, plus steel hoarding.

This gets down to the basic fault of Donald Nelson. He is too nice. He can't say no. He trusts people too much. And like his chief in the White House, he likes his friends and can't fire them.

Nelson is not tough enough to call in Eugene Grace, head of Bethlehem Steel, or Ben Fairless, head of Carnegie-Illinois Steel, and tell them that he is sending his own men to make sure that steel does not go to private industry.

Nelson never cracked any heads, never made any enemies. Also, of course, a lot of steel leaked out into private warehouses before he took office.

The railroads today are reported to have piles of steel stacked up for the future. Hotels, office buildings, race-tracks, other favorite customers of the steel moguls, all got waited on — sometimes even before the shipyards and the tank factories.

And Don Nelson never called in the big steel men and said: "I'm going to place my own house detectives inside your plants to see where the steel is going."

WALL STREET CROWD

Bernie Baruch, shrewd industrial boss of the last war, has been doing his best to help Nelson behind the scenes, sometimes has taken him on week-end rests during which he urged Don not to be so nice. But by the time Nelson got back to work on Monday, all the niceness had surged to the fore again, and the milk o' human kindness was exuding toward his fellow men.

Nelson works tremendously. He puts in terrific hours. No one is more loyal, more concerned over the war effort. But he is handicapped, too, in being surrounded by weak men. A lot of the weaklings were there when he arrived and never got the gate. Still more have arrived since he took office.

Chief picker of these men is Sidney Weinberg, head of Goldman, Sachs & Co., and a director of B. F. Goodrich, Continental Can, General Cigar, National Dairy Products, McKesson and Robbins, plus many others, among them Sears, Robuck which is Donald Nelson's old firm.

Sidney has picked his old cronies from Wall Street, plus a lot more who may become his cronies in Wall Street after the war. That is one reason why so many of the same men who came down to Washington and ran the NRA into the ground, are now back with the WPB today.

Unless there is some cut-throat, house-cleaning soon, the same old NRA crowd may run the war effort— and the country — into the ground again.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Army medicos gasped when, with the temperature 106 in the shade, a Ft. Bliss, Tex., soldier walked in with a frozen finger. The strange phenomenon was due to the soldier's careless handling of a shipment of dry ice. . . . .A friend met Lieut. Gen. Bill Knudsen in Detroit and asked how he was feeling. "Fine, fine," said Knudsen with a grin, "I visited 27 plants this week." . . . .Strait-laced Army and Navy Journal, which seldom delves in politics, paid an unusual tribute to Representative Lane Powers, New Jersey Republican, in a recent editorial. It said: "So valuable are Mr. Powers knowledge and activities in connection with national defense that his continuance in Congress is the earnest desire of all those concerned with it, irrespective of politics."

WAR COMES FIRST

MONTREAL, Aug. 10—Lac St. Jean, Province of Quebec, far up in the northeastern corner of the province, has its wartime duties, too. The Gatineau power plants are largely occupied with wartime necessities, pulp being a secondary consideration until after the war.

Oklahoma is a Choctaw Indian word meaning "red people."

Nelson never cracked any heads, never made any enemies. Also, of course, a lot of steel leaked out into private warehouses before he took office.

The railroads today are reported to have piles of steel stacked up for the future. Hotels, office buildings, race-tracks, other favorite customers of the steel moguls, all got waited on — sometimes even before the shipyards and the tank factories.

And Don Nelson never called in the big steel men and said: "I'm going to place my own house detectives inside your plants to see where the steel is going."

WALL STREET CROWD

Bernie Baruch, shrewd industrial boss of the last war, has been doing his best to help Nelson behind the scenes, sometimes has taken him on week-end rests during which he urged Don not to be so nice. But by the time Nelson got back to work on Monday, all the niceness had surged to the fore again, and the milk o' human kindness was exuding toward his fellow men.

Nelson works tremendously. He puts in terrific hours. No one is more loyal, more concerned over the war effort. But he is handicapped, too, in being surrounded by weak men. A lot of the weaklings were there when he arrived and never got the gate. Still more have arrived since he took office.

Chief picker of these men is Sidney Weinberg, head of Goldman, Sachs & Co., and a director of B. F. Goodrich, Continental Can, General Cigar, National Dairy Products, McKesson and Robbins, plus many others, among them Sears, Robuck which is Donald Nelson's old firm.

Sidney has picked his old cronies from Wall Street, plus a lot more who may become his cronies in Wall Street after the war. That is one reason why so many of the same men who came down to Washington and ran the NRA into the ground, are now back with the WPB today.

Unless there is some cut-throat, house-cleaning soon, the same old NRA crowd may run the war effort— and the country — into the ground again.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Army medicos gasped when, with the temperature 106 in the shade, a Ft. Bliss, Tex., soldier walked in with a frozen finger. The strange phenomenon was due to the soldier's careless handling of a shipment of dry ice. . . . A friend met Lieut. Gen. Bill Knudsen in Detroit and asked how he was feeling. "Fine, fine," said Knudsen with a grin, "I visited 27 plants this week." . . . Straitlaced Army and Navy Journal, which seldom delves in politics, paid an unusual tribute to Representative Lane Powers, New Jersey Republican, in a recent editorial. It said: "So valuable are Mr. Powers knowledge and activities in connection with national defense that his continuance in Congress is the earnest desire of all those concerned with it, irrespective of politics."

WAR COMES FIRST

MONTREAL, Aug. 10—Lac St. Jean, Province of Quebec, far up in the northeastern corner of the province, has its wartime duties, too. The Gatineau power plants are largely occupied with wartime necessities, pulp being a secondary consideration until after the war.

CONTESTS HOLD INTEREST

Close Races Seen For Several Posts—Interest Mounts In Balloting

Mid-Circleville took on the appearance of a political convention Saturday night as candidates for nomination to county offices made their semi-final efforts to gather sufficient votes to put them on the November ticket.

Tuesday brings the primary election, polls opening at 6:30 and closing 12 hours later, and Pickaway countians are expected to designate their choices for several salaried offices and for some which do not carry pay, such as members of central committees of both political parties. Several contests prevail for committee posts.

Several county office contests are drawing much attention, and may send the number of persons visiting the polls to a higher figure than was expected earlier. Interest in the primary has been increasing in the last few days and a fairly good-sized ballot is expected.

Local Contests

The local contests are for nomination for auditor on Democratic and Republican tickets; nomination for commissioner on both tickets, and nomination for representative to the general assembly on the Democratic ballot.

Earl L. Hoffman and D. A. Yates are seeking Democratic support for auditor and for the right to run against Auditor Forrest Short, the Republican incumbent, in November. Short has no opposition for renomination.

Tull Barnes of Circleville and Wayne Brown of Madison township are in the race for Democratic nomination for commissioner, the winner to contest the victor in the E. A. McCoy and Lyman Penn contest. The post being sought is held now by C. Edward Wright of Harrison township who is retiring from the board after two terms.

Democratic nomination for representative is drawing much attention, three well known men seeking the right to run against Herbert E. Louis, unopposed New Holland Republican, in the Fall. Asking nomination are Lawrence E. Goeller, Ralph E. May and Harry B. Welch. The former served several terms as Democratic executive committee chairman; Mr. May was a county commissioner, and Mr. Welch was the nominee against William D. Radcliff two years ago. Mr. Radcliff gave up his opportunity for renomination when he joined the Army.

Congress Race

Congressional competition is expected to be keen, also, with a contest on both tickets. Congressman Harold K. Claypool is being opposed by Robert U. Hastings, Fairfield county prosecutor, while Republicans are voting for Dr. Walter Brehm, Logan, and Clarence L. Chute, New Lexington.

Among state contests of interest here is the race for nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket, five Ohioans being in the field. Among the five several have large followings in Pickaway county. On the list are, in the order they will appear on the ballot, Frank A. Dye, Joseph T. Ferguson, Walter Heer, Clarence Knisley and John McSweeney.

All presiding judges have received their instructions and all will be ready for work at 6:30 a. m. Tuesday. Board officials believe that, barring no unexpected difficulties, results may be known by midnight Tuesday or by 2 a. m. Wednesday at the latest.

Persons seeking information on the election may telephone No. 581. The Daily Herald office, AFTER 10 p. m. Tuesday. It is likely that no definite information will be available before that time.

The only change in precinct location in Circleville will be Ward 1 Precinct A which formerly voted in Ed Helwagen's garage. The booth will now be at the Bostwick filling station, just north of the Helwagen garage building.

All booths will be marked by American flags.

Awaiting Zero Hour

The cameraman took this photo of Capt. William Musselwhite of Jackson, Miss., commanding officer of one of the United States Army's B-17 Flying Fortresses in England, as he awaited the zero hour for the takeoff on a bombing invasion of the European continent.

ONE OUT OF TEN STATE STUDENTS IS FROM FARM

One out of every 10 county students attending Ohio State University is the son or daughter of a farmer, judging from a report for the university as a whole just released by Registrar Edith D. Cockins.

For the 12 months ending June 30, children of farmers outnumbered 1600 out of a total student body of 15,556 for the year. Farmers constituted the most numerous occupational group among the 125 classifications listed in the report.

Other large groups of parents were: salesmen, 699; school techers and officials, 579; government emplcyees, 524; merchants, 478; professional engineers, 398; and railway employees, 422.

At the other end of the list, with one each, were auctioneer, doorman, horologist, and inventor.

More Names Added To County First Aid List

Names of additional persons who have completed advanced and standard courses in first aid for civilian defense were announced Monday by Pickaway county Red Cross. The lists include persons from Ashivlle, Monroe township and Williamsport communities. Instructors were O. J. Ward for Ashville and Dr. M. D. Gamble for Monroe township and Williamsport.

Persons in the Ashville area may receive their cards from Mrs. Harold J. Bowers, while Mrs. Ida Ware of Williamsport has the cards for the Monroe-Williamsport community.

R. A. F. STUDIES PLANES DOWNED OVER BRITAIN

Many Enemy Aviation Secrets Discovered Among Wrecks Of Invaders

WORK OF SKILLED STAFF

Samples Taken Of Steel And Keen Attention Paid To All Instruments

LONDON, Aug. 10— Many enemy aviation secrets have been discovered by the RAF during the minute examination that is applied to every German plane shot down over Britain.

This examination is carried out by the highly skilled laboratory staff of the Department of Research and Development of the British Ministry of Aircraft Production.

It aims at acquiring data of aero-dynamic features, engines, armaments, bomb installation, electrical exygen radio equipment and instruments. Every plane device is studied and where necessary measured, weighed and photographed.

For instance, samples are taken of the very high grade steel found inside the cockpit of enemy planes. The composition of this component is determined by chemical analysis. Each sample is subjected to hardness tests to find its approximate tensile strength, microscopical examination is then made of miscosections prepared from these samples.

Dornier Bomber Studied

The Dornier 217 E 1 is the most latest type of bomber on the German secret list to fall into British hands and as a result of the highly specialized work of research, every feature of this machine is now known and understood.

It is an all-metal high-wing monoplane powered with two B.M.W. 801 double-row air-cooled radial engines. The technical data obtained about this engine is of special value, for it is also fitted to the latest type of German fighter, the Focke-Wulf 190.

Several devices have been discovered in the wrecked Dornier during examination and from its construction and equipment it is learned that it is used as a bomber, a torpedo-plane, and a dive-bomber. When used as a dive-bomber it has a peculiar dive brake attached to its tail.

Art Of Fire Extinguishing

Particular attention appears to have been given to means of extinguishing fire in the machine. This is done by an apparatus from which carbon dioxide gas is released. The cockpit wherein the crew of four sit is heavily armored and since nine guns are carried including two cannon, this bomber is considered to be heavily armed.

A very elaborate electrical system is employed. The operation of the bomb-doors, the bomb fusing, the operation of the shell-firing guns are all done through this system. The air screws and dive brakes are also electrically controlled, the latter providing an automatic recovery from a dive when necessary.

There is also evidence to show that the Dornier when taking off with a heavy load is assisted into the air by means of rockets which are fixed to the trailing edge of the wings. The weight of the Dornier is 33,500 pounds and its maximum speed is estimated at 309 miles per hour.

WASHINGTON'S ARTILLERY

An infantry battalion of U. S. Marines, commanded by Major Samuel Nicholas, served as the artillery for General George Washington's army in 1776. The Marines, Washington learned, could easily man the artillery because nearly all Marines had served on board ship and had had experience manning large guns of naval vessels.

R. A. F. STUDIES PLANES DOWNED OVER BRITAIN

Many Enemy Aviation Secrets Discovered Among Wrecks Of Invaders

WORK OF SKILLED STAFF

Samples Taken Of Steel And Keen Attention Paid To All Instruments

LONDON, Aug. 10— Many enemy aviation secrets have been discovered by the RAF during the minute examination that is applied to every German plane shot down over Britain.

This examination is carried out by the highly skilled laboratory staff of the Department of Research and Development of the British Ministry of Aircraft Production.

It aims at acquiring data of aero-dynamic features, engines, armaments, bomb installation, electrical exygen radio equipment and instruments. Every plane device is studied and where necessary measured, weighed and photographed.

For instance, samples are taken of the very high grade steel found inside the cockpit of enemy planes. The composition of this component is determined by chemical analysis. Each sample is subjected to hardness tests to find its approximate tensile strength, microscopical examination is then made of miscosections prepared from these samples.

Dornier Bomber Studied

The Dornier 217 E 1 is the most latest type of bomber on the German secret list to fall into British hands and as a result of the highly specialized work of research, every feature of this machine is now known and understood.

It is an all-metal high-wing monoplane powered with two B.M.W. 801 double-row air-cooled radial engines. The technical data obtained about this engine is of special value, for it is also fitted to the latest type of German fighter, the Focke-Wulf 190.

Several devices have been discovered in the wrecked Dornier during examination and from its construction and equipment it is learned that it is used as a bomber, a torpedo-plane, and a dive-bomber. When used as a dive-bomber it has a peculiar dive brake attached to its tail.

Art Of Fire Extinguishing

Particular attention appears to have been given to means of extinguishing fire in the machine. This is done by an apparatus from which carbon dioxide gas is released. The cockpit wherein the crew of four sit is heavily armored and since nine guns are carried including two cannon, this bomber is considered to be heavily armed.

A very elaborate electrical system is employed. The operation of the bomb-doors, the bomb fusing, the operation of the shell-firing guns are all done through this system. The air screws and dive brakes are also electrically controlled, the latter providing an automatic recovery from a dive when necessary.

There is also evidence to show that the Dornier when taking off with a heavy load is assisted into the air by means of rockets which are fixed to the trailing edge of the wings. The weight of the Dornier is 33,500 pounds and its maximum speed is estimated at 309 miles per hour.

WASHINGTON'S ARTILLERY

An infantry battalion of U. S. Marines, commanded by Major Samuel Nicholas, served as the artillery for General George Washington's army in 1776. The Marines, Washington learned, could easily man the artillery because nearly all Marines had served on board ship and had had experience manning large guns of naval vessels.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 — Survey of a proposed near-coastal railroad to Alaska has been under way since early Spring, the War Department revealed.

The proposed rail system would supplement the inland Trans-Canadian Highway now under construction and round out a four-way access to Alaska — sea, air, road and rail — outlined by Lieutenant General Brehon B. Conducted by the Corps of Engineers, the project has the complete cooperation of the Canadian Government. All needed materials have been allowed to enter Canada duty-free.

CRAW DUNKING GETS RESULTS AT BUCKEYE LAKE

Catches of bass are being taken by the dunking process at Buckeye Lake — dropping a soft craw from the end of a long cane pole into the pockets between the lily pads and horsing out the fish before it has time to tangle the line in the vegetation. Also the inevitable trolling route of the deep-running, wiggling plug past the floating islets of hyacinths under which the bass lurk in shaded cooler water and near the deep-water logs and stumps continues throughout most of the year to bring the best catches. Bluegills still are being taken in the deep water with worms of various kinds, including the small garden worm, the garden cut-worm and the catalpa worm.

Excess vegetation at Buckeye Lake is now being removed and transferred by fish management agents of the Ohio Conservation Division to new lakes in the Muskingum Conservancy District where it is needed to promote fish propagation. Buckeye Lake has long ago reached the peak of fish production and the many species present there are in quantities actually in excess of those required to provide good fishing. So now new areas must be opened up in the vegetation to provide better access to the fish.

Surveys conducted by the Conservation Division in 1930 and again in 1940 indicate that there has been no change in the fish population, either up or down, which indicates again that any amount of fishing pressure cannot deplete the lake of fish so long as its present high rate of productivity is maintained. The Conservation Division has put 139 tons of gravel spawning areas in at the lake.

TWO HAWAIIANS STAR IN NATIONAL TANK CONTEST

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 10—Bill Smith, a native Hawaiian, today reigned as the outstanding star of the three-day annual outdoor men's swimming championships of the National Amateur Athletic Union.

In yesterday's finals Smith annexed his third title and also his second world record. He was clocked in 9:54.6 in the 880-free style event barely beating out another Hawaiian, Keo Nakama. Nakama finished in 9:55.4. His time also broke the old world record of 10:07.6, which was established by Ralph Flanagan in 1934.

Smith now possesses world figures in the 440 and 880 and a new championship record in the 220. The national title, of course, goes with each event.

The two Hawaiian swimming stars, both Ohio State students, dominated the meet as no other pair has done in many years of competition.

KASEYS AGAIN ON TOP IN ASSOCIATION RACE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10—Kansas City was again at the helm in the torrid American Association pennant race today and were to resume hostilities with the ever-challenging Columbus club tonight in Red Bird Stadium.

The Blues displaced the Red Birds yesterday in both ends of a twin bill, 3-1 and 7-2, as Minneapolis moved ahead of Milwaukee into third place with a twin killing of Indianapolis, 6-4 and 5-3.

In the other Sabbath double bill, Louisville took the measure of St. Paul, 5-0, in the nightcap after dropping the inaugural, 6-4.

Milwaukee and Toledo were idle due to weather conditions in the latter city.

Kansas City, by winning the two games, moved one full game ahead of the Red Birds and maintained a two game margin over Minneapolis. Idle Milwaukee is now two and one-half games off the pace while the fifth place Mudhens are four and one-half games out of the top spot.

REDS, GIANTS IN HOT FIGHT

Cincinnatians Lone Point In Van Of Ott's Crew; Cards Cut Dodger Margin

By International News Service

Cincinnati was resting today just a percentage point ahead of the Giants in the battle for third place honors in the National league. The Reds split a hectic twin bill with Chicago yesterday as the New Yorkers pounded out two wins over Philadelphia.

It took the Cubs 18 innings, the longest contest of the year, to eke out a 10 to 8 decision in the opening game of yesterday's doubleheader. Hiram Bithorn entered the game in the 12th inning to be the winning pitcher, then was credited with defeat after 4⅓ innings of the nightcap which was called because of darkness with the Reds gaining a 2 to 1 nod.

Mel Ott, manager and rightfielder of the Giants, pulled a squeeze bunt with the bases loaded in the tenth frame to give his side a 3 to 2 decision over Philadelphia in the first game. Buster Maynard smacked a home run in the fourth stanza to give the Ottmen the second game victory, 2 to 0.

Billy Jurges batted Hank Danning home with the first run in the second inning.

St. Louis chopped Brooklyn's lead to eight games with a double victory over Pittsburgh. While the Dodgers were forced into idleness because of weather, when their games with Boston were postponed, the Cardinals whipped the Pirates, 4 to 3 and 2 to 1.

Stan Musial led the Red Bird attack with a triple and double in the opening contest, his three-base hit featuring a three-run Cardinal attack in the first inning. Musial slammed out two more hits in the nightcap, his double sending over the first Cardinal run.

In the American league, Chicago beat Cleveland twice, 11 to 3 and 3 to 2. As a result, the Indians yielded second place to Boston's Red Sox, who were idle because of weather. The double wins ran the White Sox winning streak to eight games.

Ted Lyons hurled his seventh successive victory and tenth of the season in the opener, scattering four hits for his 255th triumph of his Major league career.

Bob Kennedy, who soon will report to the Navy Air Corps, clinched the second game with a single in the ninth to snap a 2 to 2 tie.

Detroit turned back St. Louis in both ends of a doubleheader, the Tigers winning, 9 to 3 and 3 to 1. Hal Newhouser pitched seven-hit ball in the opener, with Virgil Trucks limiting the Browns to six hits in the nightcaps.

CRAIG WOOD KNOCKS OFF CANADIAN OPEN HONORS

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 10 — Craig Wood today was holder of two major golfing championships for the duration and holder of another near record score.

The big blond pro from Mamroneck, N. Y., added the Canadian Open to his U. S. Open crown on Saturday and did it with a 6-hole total of 275, or just one stroke above the standard set by Sam Snead when he won the title last year.

In clipping 13 strokes off par for the 72 holes, Wood beat out Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., by four strokes, the latter having shot a last day 65 to equal the course record.

Clayton Heafner, the big North Carolina slugger, took third place with 281 and Ben Hogan fourth with 282.

OUR LOAN NO. 856422 is a young farmer who borrowed $50 from The City Loan and bought 500 baby chicks. He sold the roosters for $250 and made $750 in ten months by selling eggs. Later he received $100 for his pullets. As he writes, "I figure I've made nearly a thousand dollars in a year with my $50 loan." That kind of profit looks good to anybody. CRAW DUNKING GETS RESULTS AT BUCKEYE LAKE

Catches of bass are being taken by the dunking process at Buckeye Lake — dropping a soft craw from the end of a long cane pole into the pockets between the lily pads and horsing out the fish before it has time to tangle the line in the vegetation. Also the inevitable trolling route of the deep-running, wiggling plug past the floating islets of hyacinths under which the bass lurk in shaded cooler water and near the deep-water logs and stumps continues throughout most of the year to bring the best catches. Bluegills still are being taken in the deep water with worms of various kinds, including the small garden worm, the garden cut-worm and the catalpa worm.

Excess vegetation at Buckeye Lake is now being removed and transferred by fish management agents of the Ohio Conservation Division to new lakes in the Muskingum Conservancy District where it is needed to promote fish propagation. Buckeye Lake has long ago reached the peak of fish production and the many species present there are in quantities actually in excess of those required to provide good fishing. So now new areas must be opened up in the vegetation to provide better access to the fish.

Surveys conducted by the Conservation Division in 1930 and again in 1940 indicate that there has been no change in the fish population, either up or down, which indicates again that any amount of fishing pressure cannot deplete the lake of fish so long as its present high rate of productivity is maintained. The Conservation Division has put 139 tons of gravel spawning areas in at the lake.

TWO HAWAIIANS STAR IN NATIONAL TANK CONTEST

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 10 —Bill Smith, a native Hawaiian, today reigned as the outstanding star of the three-day annual outdoor men's swimming championships of the National Amateur Athletic Union.

In yesterday's finals Smith annexed his third title and also his second world record. He was clocked in 9:54.6 in the 880-free style event barely beating out another Hawaiian, Keo Nakama. Nakama finished in 9:55.4. His time also broke the old world record of 10:07.6, which was established by Ralph Flanagan in 1934.

Smith now possesses world figures in the 440 and 880 and a new championship record in the 220. The national title, of course, goes with each event.

The two Hawaiian swimming stars, both Ohio State students, dominated the meet as no other pair has done in many years of competition.

KASEYS AGAIN ON TOP IN ASSOCIATION RACE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 10—Kansas City was again at the helm in the torrid American Association pennant race today and were to resume hostilities with the ever-challenging Columbus club tonight in Red Bird Stadium.

The Blues displaced the Red Birds yesterday in both ends of a twin bill, 3-1 and 7-2, as Minneapolis moved ahead of Milwaukee into third place with a twin killing of Indianapolis, 6-4 and 5-3.

In the other Sabbath double bill, Louisville took the measure of St. Paul, 5-0, in the nightcap after dropping the inaugural, 6-4.

Milwaukee and Toledo were idle due to weather conditions in the latter city.

Kansas City, by winning the two games, moved one full game ahead of the Red Birds and maintained a two game margin over Minneapolis. Idle Milwaukee is now two and one-half games off the pace while the fifth place Mudhens are four and one-half games out of the top spot.

KENNEDY IN NAVY CORPS

REDS, GIANTS IN HOT FIGHT

Cincinnatians Lone Point In Van Of Ott's Crew; Cards Cut Dodger Margin

By International News Service

Cincinnati was resting today just a percentage point ahead of the Giants in the battle for third place honors in the National league. The Reds split a hectic twin bill with Chicago yesterday as the New Yorkers pounded out two wins over Philadelphia.

It took the Cubs 18 innings, the longest contest of the year, to eke out a 10 to 8 decision in the opening game of yesterday's doubleheader. Hiram Bithorn entered the game in the 12th inning to be the winning pitcher, then was credited with defeat after 4⅓ innings of the nightcap which was called because of darkness with the Reds gaining a 2 to 1 nod.

Mel Ott, manager and right-fielder of the Giants, pulled a squeeze bunt with the bases loaded in the tenth frame to give his side a 3 to 2 decision over Philadelphia in the first game. Buster Maynard smacked a home run in the fourth stanza to give the Ottmen the second game victory, 2 to 0.

Billy Jurges batted Hank Danning home with the first run in the second inning.

St. Louis chopped Brooklyn's lead to eight games with a double victory over Pittsburgh. While the Dodgers were forced into idleness because of weather, when their games with Boston were postponed, the Cardinals whipped the Pirates, 4 to 3 and 2 to 1.

Stan Musial led the Red Bird attack with a triple and double in the opening contest, his three-base hit featuring a three-run Cardinal attack in the first inning. Musial slammed out two more hits in the nightcap, his double sending over the first Cardinal run.

In the American league, Chicago beat Cleveland twice, 11 to 3 and 3 to 2. As a result, the Indians yielded second place to Boston's Red Sox, who were idle because of weather. The double wins ran the White Sox winning streak to eight games.

Ted Lyons hurled his seventh successive victory and tenth of the season in the opener, scattering four hits for his 255th triumph of his Major league career.

Bob Kennedy, who soon will report to the Navy Air Corps, clinched the second game with a single in the ninth to snap a 2 to 2 tie.

Detroit turned back St. Louis in both ends of a doubleheader, the Tigers winning, 9 to 3 and 3 to 1. Hal Newhouser pitched seven-hit ball in the opener, with Virgil Trucks limiting the Browns to six hits in the nightcaps.

CRAIG WOOD KNOCKS OFF CANADIAN OPEN HONORS

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 10 — Craig Wood today was holder of two major golfing championships for the duration and holder of another near record score.

The big blond pro from Mamroneck, N. Y., added the Canadian Open to his U. S. Open crown on Saturday and did it with a 72-hole total of 275, or just one stroke above the standard set by Sam Snead when he won the title last year.

In clipping 13 strokes off par for the 72 holes, Wood beat out Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., by four strokes, the latter having shot a last day 65 to equal the course record.

Clayton Heafner, the big North Carolina slugger, took third place with 281 and Ben Hogan fourth with 282.

Parade Wednesday Morning Features Celebration

COUNTY TO PAY RESPECTS TO 62 SOLDIERS-TO-BE

Jaycees Urge Citizens And Officials To Join In Farewell Program

FIRST MAJOR SEND-OFF

Previous Events Prevented By Indefinite Status Of Draftees

Circleville and Pickaway county will pay their respects Wednesday, August 12, to a large contingent of district men who will leave that date for Army training stations throughout the nation. All will leave at 9 a. m. by bus for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., where they will be equipped and put into training. The first leg of the journey will be to Columbus where the group will be put on a train headed for the big induction center.

Junior Chamber of Commerce of Circleville is sponsoring a send-off party for the draftees, planning a parade with band music and other features as a tribute to the members of the contingent.

Report At 8:30

The selectees will report at the courthouse at 8:30 a. m. prepared to leave. The procession is scheduled to start 30 minutes later with the entire party walking to High street from the courthouse. At High street the inductees will enter the buses.

Jaycee officials are urging all civic and patriotic organizations to participate in the parade.

The send-off will be the first planned in Circleville despite the fact that the community sent two National Guard outfits into service almost two years ago and numerous draft contingents at various times since the country became engaged in total war.

Heretofore, draft officials have kept secret the departing date for draftees in line with national requests. However, since draft regulations have been changed permitting men 14 days of furlough after being accepted there is no objection to send-off parties.

Others To Leave

In addition to the 62 leaving Wednesday there are six additional selectees ready to go into service in a few days. These are men who were taken to Fort Benjamin Harrison before passing physical examinations. They are ordered to report 14 days after being accepted which gives these six several days at home after the other members of the contingent leave.

All, however, are invited to participate in the parade.

Gloria Hunter, 16, of Elmira, N. Y., brings her pet lamb, above, down to New York to enter him in a unique beauty contest sponsored by the Laskinlam institute. The prize-winning lamb will tour the country to publicize the part played by sheep in the war effort, according to the institute.

VIOLATION OF PARKING LAW TO PROVE COSTLY

Continued violation of Circleville's parking regulations may become very costly, and soon.

Police started Monday to check over their unanswered tag list, and persons found to be violating traffic regulations without responding to calls to police headquarters will be ordered to appear before Mayor Ben H. Gordon.

A stack of traffic tickets that must number between 200 and 300 rests on the police court desk, and it is through this stack that a check is being made.

It may be a week or it may be two weeks before police get into action to break up the practice of tearing up tickets, but the plan means that arrests are likely.

Mayor Gordon said that persons who have received several tickets and have ignored all of them will be forced to pay much more than the minimum of $1 fine usually assessed.

NEW DRAFT EXCUSE

HARRISBURG, Aug. 10 — A Pennsylvania draft registrant asked deferment because of his mother-in-law's false teeth, explaining he wanted to work to pay off a $75 bill for the plates in two years. State Selective Service headquarters also reported a husband had asked to stay in civilian life because he is dependent upon his wife and she is dependent on him; he can't bear to leave her and vice versa.

BIG TRANSPORT PLANES PREPARE TO TOW GLIDERS

Circleville and Pickaway county folk who have watched with interest the airplanes and their one, two or three gliders which have been traveling over the district for the last several weeks will see big transports and an undisclosed number of planes over the same area in the next few days.

Big transport planes are now stationed at the Lockbourne air base and all are ready to tow larger gliders and larger numbers of gliders.

The base at the same time the big transports arrived saw its population boosted considerably when an undisclosed number of officers and men arrived for training.

The transport plane unit is under command of Captain F. W. Cullums.

The transports are painted an olive drab and are the type known in the Army as C-47s and commercially as DC-2s. They normally fly 14 passengers when in commercial use.

NEW PROGRAM OF PROPAGATION IS MAKING GAINS

A new program of natural propagation of game birds and animals has been started by the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources, Commissioner Don Waters announced today.

The goal of the new program is at least one natural propagation area for game in every township of the state. C. E. Webb, in charge of this new Pittman-Robertson program, has reported to Commissioner Waters that already 42 of these areas have been set up, comprising 648 acres on 8,700 acres leased. These areas on which $1 is paid for each lease are in addition to the many other game refuges of the Division.

This new program will be of interest to every sportsman and farmer in the state, because—

For the sportsman: It will provide a great increase in the amount of game. It will give him some new acreages of land to hunt.

For the farmer: As almost all farmers are sportsmen, it will give him better hunting on his property and in the field. For the developmental work on these areas all the materials necessary are furnished without any financial obligations.

DEER HARVEST URGED TO HELP PROVIDE MEAT

DENVER, Aug. 10—To supplement the nation's normal meat production during the war period, the executive board of the Mile-High Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America, advocates a deer-elk harvest program.

In making its recommendation, the board pointed out that:

All sources of meat and other foods essentially must be utilized to the fullest during the war. Colorado "problem areas" have a surplus of deer and elk, and selective service and auto and tire rationing will reduce the state's normal supply of big game hunters between 25 and 50 percent during war years.
